POLES TAKE 80,000 RUSSIANS

Official Report Indicates Three or Four Bolshevik Armies Are Wiped Out

London, Aug. 24.—A Central News dispatch from Warsaw today quotes a Polish newspaper as saying that the Russian commander on the battle-front in Northern Poland has entered into negotiations with the Poles with a view to capitulation.

Paris, Aug. 23.—America's warning to Poland not to cross the Ethnolographic frontier for a campaign of aggression against Russia agrees with the French attitude, the Foreign Office announced this afternoon.

By International News Service.

Warsaw, Aug. 23, via London, Aug. 24.—More than 80,000 Russian prisoners have been captured by the Poles, the Polish General Staff announces.

If these figures are correct and the dead and wounded are added, it means that three or four of the Russian armies that were attacking Warsaw have been wiped out.

Five fresh Bolshevik divisions which were being rushed from Siberia to reinforce the Reds on the Polish front were reported to have mutinied, refusing to enter the battle.

The Polish General Staff announced that a radiogram from General Budenny's headquarters had been in-

Posse Hunting for Woman

By International News Service.

Westfield, Aug. 24.—A posse of police and citizens are searching the woods near Mundale and the quarry on Russell mountain for Mrs. Prosper A. Root, who disappeared while riding in her automobile yesterday.

The automobile was discovered under a tree and securely locked. One of the posses stated that they came across a boys' camp in a ravine and the boys said that at about 7 o'clock in the evening they heard a man's and woman's voices and shortly afterward a woman's cry for help.

Coincident with the report of the mysterious disappearance of Mrs. Root came a report that a woman had been held up and robbed in Granville, which is situated about three miles west from where the automobile was found.

SUGAR REFINERS IN PANIC

Trying to Maintain Price at 22½ Cents, While Retailers Unload at 17

The sugar situation in Boston today hinged on a frantic attempt of the American Sugar Refining Company, the only refinery in this district, to keep the wholesale price in carload lots up to 22½ cents a pound, while jobbers were selling sugar for as low as 17 cents.

The Arbuckle Company in New York has cut its wholesale price to 17 cents, but the local refiners are bending every energy to maintain high prices, largely by spreading tales of shortage. Nearly all the sugar being sold in large lots here today was by jobbers and speculators for any price they could get, in an effort to unload the hoards they now have on hand.

Intense bitterness was manifest in the trade against the local refiners, whose emissaries were spreading tales to the effect that a shortage existed worse than that of a year ago. Retail dealers and jobbers declare that no such shortage exists.

Both the large refining concerns named have on hand vast stocks of raw and refined sugar, and other big stocks are known to exist in Boston. The banks are calling for money loaned to jobbers and speculators, and the latter are being forced to close out their stocks to meet their obligations.

REVEALS TRANSACTIONS WITH HANOVER TRUST OFFICIALS

Officers of the Hanover Trust Company, the chief of police of Sharon, business concerns and other individuals borrowed large sums of money from Charles Ponzi, he stated in resuming the witness stand in the receivers' hearing at the Federal Building today.

These loans, which Ponzi included in his assets, were given by him as follows:

Henry H. Chmielinski, president Hanover Trust Company, $20,000; William S. McNary, treasurer and chairman of the board of directors of the same bank, $20,000; a Mr. Desmond, president of the Lawrence Trust Company, $10,000; Chief of Police of Sharon, $600; Napoli Macaroni Manufacturing Company, $8,000, secured by a mortgage.

In addition there was the loan of $130,000 to J. R. Poole, which Ponzi mentioned in his testimony Saturday.

Asked at what figure he placed his assets, Ponzi replied: "$3,000,000."

"Assuming," said Attorney Robert D. Dodge of counsel for the receivers, "that your liabilities are about $4,800,000, you are not solvent."

"Well," Ponzi replied, "of course if my assets do not meet my liabilities I am not solvent."

Pinned down to his previous statement that his assets were about $1,500,000, which he qualified by adding, "between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000," Ponzi admitted that, according to the present figures, he was insolvent.

RECANTS ON INSOLVENCY.

He had previously asserted with much vehemence that the official figures of his liabilities were inaccurate and that he could meet all demands made upon him if allowed his freedom.

Previous to his appearance on the stand Ponzi had manifested his Saturday's spirit of defiance to his questioners, when he picked up a morning newspaper in the marshal's office and read a headline to the effect that he was going to be grilled.

"That's all wrong," said Ponzi. "They won't grill me."

Another feature of the case today

Washington, Aug. 24.—Recommendations for drastic changes in the operations of street railway systems were made in the report of the Federal Electric Railways Commission to President Wilson.

The commission appointed by the President about a year ago, at the request of the secretaries of commerce and labor, on the grounds that "the industry as a whole is virtually bankrupt," and that the continued shrinkage in the hundreds of millions of electric railway securities threatened to embarrass the nation's financial operations, unanimously recommends that:

VALIDITY OF PAYMENTS MADE BY PONZI ARE UNDER FIRE

was the statement by Attorney Daniel Y. Meleane of Ponzi's counsel when asked if he intended to turn back the $25,000 counsel fee which he had received.

"That matter has not been discussed yet. We expect to be called as witnesses, according to his partner, Daniel H. Coakley and himself.)

"However, I think that we are fairly earning our money."

Attorney Coakley was in the courtroom for the first time since the hearing began, as was John P. Feeney, also retained as one of Ponzi's counsel. Another interested spectator was Thomas W. Lawson, author of "Frenzied Finance."

MISS MELI ARRIVES.

Shortly after Ponzi made his appearance at the Federal building Miss Lucy Meli, his former office manager, arrived, having been summoned as a witness. She had in her possession a check for $85,000, made out to Charles Ponzi from the Brooks Steamship Corporation of New York, "for investment as per agreement." The check was drawn on the Chase National Bank, Broadway, New York, and was signed by F. Bradley Cox, president, and Owen W. Moore, treasurer.

A large throng of Ponzi noteholders and curious persons was gathered in the corridor outside the bankruptcy court, all anxious to get a glimpse of the former get-rich-quick operator. When the doors were opened the crowd surged inside and all the seats were quickly filled, leaving a large number standing. These were forced to leave and the doors were then closed.

When Ponzi was taken into court he presented his usual immaculate appearance, being clad in a blue suit, with silk handkerchief in the upper pocket, and wore a silk shirt. He was as imperturbable as ever, and appeared to take as much interest in the proceedings as anyone there.

QUESTIONED BY DODGE.

Placed on the witness stand, the questioning was resumed where it was left off Saturday by Attorney Dodge:

Q—Mr. Ponzi, how much are your assets? A—About three million dollars.

Q—Then if you still claim the four million eight hundred dollar assets, you are solvent? A—Well, if the liabilities meet the assets, of course I am insolvent.

Q—But you have just given us to understand that your liabilities are three million dollars? A—Well they might be more.

Q—How much more? A—Oh, three to four million dollars. I would have to refer to my papers to be accurate.

Q—You have produced here certification of stock and mortgages as your assets. Have you anything in addition? A—Yes. I made loans to certain individuals.

Q—Who were they? A—I would have to go over my papers to get all of them.

Q—Well, give us some of the names. A—I loaned Henry Chmielinski $20,000. He is the president of the Hanover Trust Company. I loaned William S. McNary, vice-president of the Hanover Trust Company, $20,000. Mr. Pennini, president of the Lawrence Trust Company, $18,000. The chief of police of Lawrence, I don't recall his name—$600. I have notes for these loans. Then I loaned $8,000 to the Napoli Macaroni Company, secured by a mortgage.

$180,000 TO POOLE.

Q—Were there any other loans? A—Well I loaned $130,000 to J. R. Poole.

Q—Is there anything more? A—Yes I have bonds.

Q—Are some of those in the Hanover Trust Company? A.—Yes.

Q—You had a safety deposit box didn't you, Mr. Ponzi? A.—Yes, I had five or six. I had one in the Hanover Trust Company, one in the Atlantic, one at the branch, one at the Fidelity Trust Company, one at the Vermont Trust Company, one at the Tremont Trust Company, one at the First National Bank, and two at the Lexington Trust company.

Q—Did you have securities or money in any of these? A—I didn't have anything in the Hanover Trust Company in the branch I had some German marks and Liberty bonds. I didn't have anything in the First National Bank or the Tremont Trust Company.

Q—All of these were in your name? A—Yes.

Q—Where are the keys? A—I have them. Some of them now are with the sheriff in East Cambridge jail.

DREW LEXINGTON BONDS.

Q—What did you do with the money you had in the Lexington Trust Company? A—I drew it out myself.

Q—What did you do that for? A—To pay grocery bills and things.

Q—How much did you have there? A—About six thousand dollars.

Q—You are sure it was not thirteen thousand dollars? A—I don't think so.

Q—Did you go to the bank personally and draw it out? A—No, I sent Mr. Neilson.

"Neither Mr. Ponzi nor I," said Miss Meli, "can understand how his liabilities can be as high as Mr. Pride declares them to be. Mr. Ponzi and I believe the liabilities are $4,000,000, and not $7,000,000, as Mr. Pride claims."

The former office manager for the something-for-nothing schemer denied the business was carried on in a backhand manner, and asserted that the amount of money taken in was less than claimed.

"Our earlier business was very small compared to what came later," said she. "After about two months it grew from $5,000 a day to $50,000 and soon afterward to $100,000 a day. The books will show all that.

"I am sure that all the money we took in was deposited in various banks. There were the Hanover Trust, Federal Trust, Tremont Trust and Cosmopolitan Trust, the First National and Merchants National. Mr. Ponzi at times took a little pocket money, but this was always recorded.

"Mr. Ponzi was the only one who ever drew out money in that way and a record of it was always kept. The books will show that.

"It is not true that our office force paid out money, or that huge amounts of cash were thrown into waste paper baskets. One of the men who took deposits was formerly with a banking house. Another had been with an electrical supply house. A girl had been office manager for a motor car concern and two of the young men had banking experience.

"LIABILITIES $4,000,000."

"I do not know what to think or say about Mr. Ponzi's solvency. I do know this; that the business grew so quickly that it got ahead of us. We could not encompass it, and we tried vainly to catch up. But I now believe our liabilities are smaller than $7,000,000. Mr. Ponzi and I believe our liabilities are $4,000,000.

"Mr. Ponzi insists that he can pay every cent but of course he can't do it if he is going to be tied up in jail.

"I wish we could all get together, the receivers, Mr. Ponzi and I, and go over all our books. It would be the most satisfactory way. I believe a careful audit of the books would show an unexpected situation. I am sure it would show that the liabilities are not so great and the assets not so small."

The validity of certain payments made by Ponzi, particularly of a personal nature, was questioned by the authorities today.

One of the checks known to be under discussion was that made out to Joseph Daniels for $50,000, as settlement of his suit for $1,000,000, in which he claimed to be Ponzi's partner.

Louis R. Tessulo, Ponzi's confidential agent, was summoned to appear at the bankruptcy hearing.

ACTIVITIES UNLESSENED.

Incidentally two questions which Ponzi declined to answer upon advice of counsel have been certified to the court to obtain a ruling as to whether the promoter must answer. These questions relate to whether he intended to carry out the truth, when he made statements to the attorney-general regarding the description, location and ownership of his assets, and when he made statements to the Attorney-General relative to the intimate nature and extent of his business.

Ponzi's clients and associates today were warned by his receivers that any attempt to destroy or convert evidence or documents relating to the affairs of the defunct "get-rich-quick" promoter constitutes a breach of the bankruptcy laws and will be punished to the fullest extent of the statutes.

This action was taken by the three receivers when it was brought to their notice that several persons, believed to have been associates of Ponzi, have made an attempt to recall their cancelled checks, then in the process of return. In one instance, according to the receivers, a deposit was collected.

The statement by the receivers, in which they declare that the attempt by Ponzi's counsel to obtain a jury trial will not interfere with their examination, is as follows:

"Several inquiries have been made of the receivers with reference to the effect of the answer and claim for jury trial which has been filed by Mr. Ponzi in the bankruptcy proceedings against him. To these questions the receivers reply that the filing of this trial has no effect upon their appointment and will not lessen in any way their activities or efforts to locate and gain possession of all of Mr. Ponzi's property.

ASSOCIATES WARNED.

"Inquiry also has been made as to whether it is the intention of the receivers further to interrogate Mr. Ponzi and other persons. To this the receivers state that it is their intention further to examine Mr. Ponzi and all such other persons as in their opinion are able to give information as to his assets.

"It has come to the attention of the receivers that certain of Mr. Ponzi's associates have, since the bankruptcy petition was filed, sought to recover from various banks, trust companies, etc., cancelled checks, and in one instance have collected a deposit.

"The receivers desire to take this occasion to warn all persons who have property or papers of any kind belonging to Mr. Ponzi, or which they have reason to believe may be his property, even though such property was received from or is in the name of other persons, that they may make themselves personally responsible by delivering such property to any persons other than to the receivers, or by destroying or attempting to conceal such property or papers."

JUDGMENT POOR SAYS BURRELL

State Treasurer, Before Republicans, Tells of Soliciting Bank Advertising

The committee appointed by the Republican State committee and ten Republican organizations to determine State Treasurer Fred A. Burrell's fitness to continue in his office met today to prepare their report, which will be submitted to the Republican convention.

Burrell confessed he had used "poor judgment" in soliciting bank advertising while State Treasurer, but in extenuation said he depended on his advertising business for his livelihood and saw nothing wrong in it at the time the letters of solicitation were sent to the banks.

Following these admissions he was bluntly told by George H. Ellis, a member of the Republican Club of Massachusetts, that it was evident that the organization would have to oppose Burrell's re-election.

Two committees were appointed, one representing the various Republican clubs of which Ellis was made chairman, and the other representing the G. O. P. State committee to consider the charges against Burrell and make a report to be acted upon at the coming Republican State Convention. The meeting of the Republican chiefs was called in the City Club with members of the following organizations, totalling about 50 persons, attending: Republican Club of Massachusetts, Republican League, Roosevelt Club, Franco-American Republican Club, Essex Club, Norfolk Club, Worcester City Republican Club and the Swedish-American Republican Club.

SIX OLD COLONY MEN ARRESTED

Two Managers and Four Agents of Foreign Exchange Held in Lynn

attorney of Essex County arraigned, before Judge Edward B. O'Brien in the Lynn District Court, the Lynn office manager and four Lynn agents of the company.

The respondents, each of whom pleaded not guilty to a complaint charging larceny, are:

Managers Charles H. Phillips and Lester Cole and Agents James Calsini, Eli Nicol, Pericles Sakellan and Henry Buckman.

Judge O'Brien ordered the managers held in $2,000 and the agents in $1,000 bail pending examination on Friday, September 3. All six came into court today without police escort in conformity with their promises to appear when called upon.

Each pleaded his innocence of guilty knowledge or intent.

Charles M. Brightwell, president of the company; Raymond M. Myers and his brother, Charles Fred Myers, the two other principal officials, were taken from the Charles Street Jail today to the Municipal Court to answer to the technical charge of larceny of $500 from person unknown.

Attorney General J. Weston Allen was scheduled to furnish the defendants counsel with a bill of specifications before the arraignment of the prisoners, all of whom are held at the Charles Street Jail, as a result of the inability of each to furnish bonds of $50,000.

After telling Brightwell's wife, Receiver Hannigan stated she was not involved in the alleged swindle and had no knowledge of any assets belonging to the old Colony Company. A. V. Grimes of No. 89 State street, has been appointed to audit the books of the company.

Haverhill Investors May Get Half of Money Back

Haverhill, Aug. 24.—State officer Richard J. Griffin has started a probe for the district attorney into the business affairs of the defunct Old Colony Foreign Exchange Company in this city. Over a hundred investors were questioned by the officer at police headquarters. He is being assisted by Captain Irving L. Hussey of the police department. There are about 150 persons in the city who have invested about $25,000.

A petition of bankruptcy is being prepared on suggestion of District Attorney S. Howard Dowell who asserts that there are assets available leading him to believe that investors will receive at least 50 per cent. of the amounts they paid over to the local agent. G. Lester Southwell, who is serving a District Attorney Dowell says that if evidence of misrepresentation of facts by Southwell or any other agent of the company is received, he will order warrants for the arrest of the agents.

WOUNDED PAIR IN TRIAL MARRIAGE FAILURE AWAIT DEATH

REJECTION LEADS TO TRAGEDY

Former Lawrence Man Who Shot Beauty Insists She Turned Gun Upon Him

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 24.—Both mortally wounded, Harrison Beal, former Lawrence business man, and Lorraine Gladys Barnes—the woman into whose body last Saturday afternoon he fired two shots, because she refused, after a five months' trial, to live longer with him as a wife—are in a hospital here awaiting death. Who fired the bullets responsible for Beal's condition is in question.

Against his statement that Miss Barnes shot him is her allegation that after shooting her, he attempted suicide. No hope for the recovery of either is entertained.

The shooting reveals the story of a woman of twenty-three—motherless, fatherless, friendless and homeless—who sought succease from the lonely hours by going to live with a man, who told her, according to her own statement, that he already had a wife; and a man, aged thirty-four, whose infatuation for a beautiful woman compelled him to desert a wife and child and make a companion of Miss Barnes.

CLAIMS HE BEAT HER.

"I gave her everything I could—money, love and sacrifice of my wife and child—but she cast me aside," he gasped as he lay in the receiving hospital."

"Tell me, will Harrison die?" He threatened to kill me repeatedly through the week because I had told him to go, that I could not endure his cruelty any longer—that I would not live with him any longer," she weakly stated from her bed in another room.

"He claims that he loves me. Does he say he shot me because he loved me? Is it love when a man will knock a woman down, and kick her, when she is down? Is it love when he will heap upon her evil curses because she is trying to free herself?"

LURED TO ROOM.

According to Miss Barnes' story, Beal, after she had driven him away, under pretext of giving her a present, lured her to his room and kept her there with a revolver for hours. Then he started to drive her in an automobile to Hollenbeck Park "to kill me I think," she said.

She induced him to drive close to her home and then jumping from the machine ran madly to the house with him in close pursuit.

Entering at the back door she went through and passing out the front door went to the police station. She returned in a few moments, accompanied by a patrolman and found Beal on the front steps. The policeman forced him to go away.

FORCES ENTRANCE.

Saturday afternoon as Miss Barnes, according to her own story, was doing her housework, Beal forced his way through the rear screen door and, entering her room, fired two shots. She claims she ran from the house calling to neighbors who had been attracted by the firing to "call a doctor."

Meantime two shots rang out. Beal, inside the house, had turned the gun himself.

"I shot her—and then—she shot me," is the way in which Beal placed responsibility for the double tragedy.

"My wife in San Francisco is suing for a divorce on charges of desertion," said the dying man. "Well, I guess she won't need to now."

In a note addressed to his father, W. A. Beal, No. 58 Jackson street, Lawrence, indicating his intending, Beal wrote: "Forgive me for this wrong doing. But I have nothing to live for but her."

LEAVES INJURED BOY ON ROAD

Revere Autoist Hits Child and Abandons Him on Way to Hospital

After knocking down and seriously injuring Arthur Carbone, thirteen years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew A. Carbone, No. 28 Beachland avenue, Revere, an unidentified autoist promised to take the boy to a hospital, but instead carried him a short distance and abandoned him on the sidewalk.

The boy was drawing his wagon along the right side of the Revere Beach boulevard near the Point of Pines, according to the police, when the machine came from the opposition direction on the wrong side of the street and hit the boy, smashing his wagon to pieces.

The autoist was accompanied by a woman and small girl. Passersby gathered around the machine and listened to the driver express his regrets and promise to take the boy to a hospital.

The police have started a search for the man. He was described as being about five feet six inches tall, weight about 160 pounds, brown suit and glasses. The machine was a Buick sedan.

MAIL VETERANS MYSTIFIED

Unable to Explain Why Washington Ignored Plea for Their Retention

Mystified at being retired from the Boston postal service, after being recommended to be retained in the service, despite the fact that they had reached the age limit, many of the 116 veterans who were recently retired, are at a loss to know why recommendations for their retention were ignored by the officials at Washington.

Postmaster Roland M. Baker, on being asked why these veterans were retired, said: "All I can say is that the recommendations regarding the retention of capable employes who had reached the age limit were not allowed. This is true, not only of Boston, but all over the country."

About three weeks prior to the retirement act going into effect Postmaster Baker received instructions from Washington to have his supervisory officials forward to Washington the list of veteran who might be retained in the service because of their ability. Postmaster Baker and the numerous supervisory officials lost no time in forwarding the names of the veterans who, in their judgment, were capable of continuing in the service despite their years.

VALERA VISITS NOTED CASTLE

Irish President Is Guest of Mrs. Henry L. Brittain at Rockridge, Ct.

Greenwich, Ct., Aug. 24.—Eamon De Valera, President of the Irish Republic, his wife and Miss O'Connor, who acted as chaperone at the Edgewood Inn the past few days with the daughter of James O'Mara, one of the trustees of the Irish bond campaign, were the guests of Mrs. Henry L. Brittain at the castle in Rockridge today.

The Irish President expressed himself as being delighted with the beautiful grounds.

The castle, built by James Green, architect of New York, is of the old Italian architecture of the fourteenth century and contains many priceless relics brought to this country by Mrs. Brittain from Italy and other countries in Europe.

The old Spanish chapel and a music room recently completed are particularly attractive. On the latter the grounds is a natural swimming pool, sky pool, lilly pool, running brook, rose gardens and shade trees.

SHOTS CAUSE AUTO WRECK

Car Demolished at Wollaston After Unidentified Men Fire at Driver

Three men and two women narrowly escaped injury when an automobile in which they were riding on the Wollaston Beach boulevard crashed into a lamp post and was wrecked, when a pair of unidentified men fired two shots from a passing automobile, causing the driver to lose control of the machine.

Ira Jay of No. 8 Lindville terrace, Dorchester, driver of the car, was accompanied by Michael Glinberg of No. 105 Elmo street and Frederick Wilson of No. 39 Lindville terrace, both of Dorchester, and Miss Margaret Bowen and Miss Mary Crowley, both of No. 81 Lenox street, Boston.

The Metropolitan Park police trailed the car in which the two men were thought to have escaped as far as Quincy where they were forced to abandon the search.

Rockland Wife Offers Husband for Sale

hand typewriter, young Mrs. Russell—she is 29 and the mother of seven children—said she liked best the idea of disposing of Carl by lottery.

"It occurs to me," she said, "that there must be 20,000 women in the United States who would invest $5 apiece in tickets on a good husband."

"And my plan," said young Mr. Russell, "supposing we should dispose of 20,000 tickets at $5 each. That's $75,000 of the proceeds to Lillian and the children, with the remaining $25,000 go into some business."

The reporter suggested that the husband lottery might run afoul of the anti-lottery law, or attract unfavorable and unfriendly attention from the Postoffice Department.

BIDS START AT $20,000.

"In that case," said Russell, "an auction might do."

"I prefer a lottery, or raffle," Mrs Russell objected, "because it would give the woman of small means an equal chance with her wealthier sisters. The auction would restrict competition to those wealthy women and local people. Pittsburgh or even Chicago who are forever jumping from one fad to another."

And Russell said, with a sigh: "Well, if it has got to be an auction the bidding will have to start at $20,000."

"At least that," said Mrs. Russell. Although admitting that Mrs. Russell had written to the New York American offering her husband for sale, the originators of the first husband lottery in the United States declared that they had hoped to avoid publicity.

DESPERATE BY H. C. L.

"Our sole purpose in making this suggestion," Russell said, "is the welfare of seven children, the youngest nine months and the oldest, a beautiful and talented girl of thirteen."

"The oldest," he said, "and we'll tell you all about it."

Then the reporter was shown into the living room of the little cottage Mrs. Russell, holding the baby in her arms, chatting while her husband talked. Occasionally she made a suggestion, always she nodded her head in confirmation of Carl Russell's statements.

"The fact of the matter," said Russell, "is that we are up against it. It isn't a case of keeping the wolf from the door any longer, for he is in and we've got to get him out.

"Ten days ago, I sold the grafonola to second-hand dealer. Last week it was the kitchen range. We had parted with several other things at that time and as the men reached out with the stove my wife said 'I don't know what I shall let go of next, probably my husband.'

INSPIRED BY JOKE.

"It was said, of course, jokingly, for we learned long ago to smile in the face of adversity, but by George, the more we talked about it the more it appeared to be an inspiration. Why not? What's wrong with it? These children are entitled to a living, an education and a chance. I can't give them to them under existing circumstances. I'd be willing to die for them, but what good would that do?

"No," put in Mrs Russell, "it was my first idea simply to put an advertisement in some big city paper. Something like this:

HUSBAND FOR SALE—The subscriber, for the best of reasons, offers for sale her husband, Carl Russell; aged 34; height, 5 ft., 10 inches; weight, 172½ lbs.; brown and plenty of it; eyes, blue; teeth, perfect; racial stock, native American; diligent worker of exceptional habits. Write to (Mrs.) Lillian Russell, Rockland, Mass.

"The objection to that plan," said Husband Russell, "was that it wouldn't have brought enough for our needs. I am a shoe worker and until the slump in the shoe shops came some ten or eleven weeks ago I was as busy as a nailer."

"Didn't you save anything?" asked the reporter.

"Save?" demanded Russell, "how could I save, with nine mouths to feed, nine bodies to clothe and the rent to pay? I have read editorials in the newspapers about the workingman's craze for silk shirts and silk socks and high-powered cars, but by Jiminy I haven't indulged in those things. Old Mr. High Cost has kept my nose right up next to the grindstone! Until the shops shut down the wolf was around the corner. When I had been loafing two weeks he was in the yard. A month ago he was up on the doorstep.

"The past few years may have been glorious times for the unmarried shoe worker, and I have no doubt they were, but the man with a houseful of youngsters has had to step lively to keep a jump and a half ahead of the sheriff.

"And that is all there is to our story except that we have now got so far behind that we have been ordered to look for another house. If neither the lottery, nor the auction plan brings us some money it looks as if the house will be so thoroughly cleared of furnishings that we shall not need a moving van."

HIS MANY ACCOMPLISHMENTS

At the interview closed and the reporter arose to leave Mrs. Russell whispered a suggestion to her husband. "A good idea," was Russell's comment. Then he said to the reporter:

"By the way, while I do not like to brag about myself, I think the women of the United States ought to know that I have dabbled in photography, drawing and music. I can play the mandolin and almost every other kind of instrument."

"You just whistle a tune," said Mrs. Russell, proudly, and Carl will sit down to the piano and even if he never heard the piece before, play it perfectly. He's wonderful that way!"

"Altogether," said Russell," I suppose I am what they call a versatile chap. They say I am good looking, too, but I don't believe in that idea, but I could put on full dress and get by at the Ritz-Carlton or any other hotel."

"Speaking of automobiles," said the reporter, "do you know anything about them?"

ARE AVERAGE COUPLE.

"Not guaranteed," said the husband who wants to be raffled or auctioned off, "that I can drive any car on the market. At this, all I've got is an operator's license."

The Russells rather unwillingly posed for a photograph. In appearance they might be described as a better-than-the-average couple. There is nothing freakish in their appearance and they are well spoken of in the neighborhood.

What conservative old Plymouth county is going to say of the "husband lottery" remains to be heard. Russell thought the lottery-auction plan could be written up without giving the address.

"No," said Mrs Lillian Russell, "we are doing this for the children, so let's leave about it. I hope the newspapers decide in favor of the lottery plan. There'll be more money in that and everybody will have a chance."

MARTIN DENIES CHARGE OF OPPONENT

John J. Martin, candidate for the Governorship, answered an attack made by his opponent, John F. Slayton, declaring that he had always voted the Republican ticket and that Slayton withdrew from that party in 1912 to join another party. A committee, headed by William S. Kinney, was appointed to work for Mr. Martin in Ward Seven.

Members of the Leather Workers' Union, No. 82, who have been out of work for nine weeks, have returned to their benches. An agreement has been reached with the Leather Goods Manufacturing Association whereby a closed shop, an increase of $2.50 to $5 a week and a 44-hour schedule will immediately go into effect.

TEXTILE MILLS SOON TO OPEN

Cancellation of Orders Has Cost Industry Nearly $200,000,000

Washington, Aug. 24—Failure of the public to buy at high prices, resulting in heavy cancellations of dealers' orders, has caused shutdowns in the textile industries, but these suspensions are only temporary and normal operations soon will be resumed.

Treasury Department experts made this prediction, after a close study of the industrial situation. Reports of manufacturers show that mills that have been idle will start again early in the Fall. Reserve bank agents report that industrial concerns generally have borne without great difficulty the financial strain placed upon them by heavy cancellations.

Officials were convinced that while in some quarters purely political reasons may be responsible for the closing down of mills in some sections of New England, the discouraging factors generally noted grew out of economic conditions.

Cancellation of orders, together with return of goods to the woolen mills, may reach as high as $200,000,000, it was stated.

WINTHROP CLUB PLANS FOR MOONLIGHT PARTY

About 300 persons are expected at the annual "moonlight sail" of Pleasant Park Yacht Club of Winthrop tomorrow night. After the sail the party will return to the club house for a moving picture show. The committee in charge consists of Commodore Farrell, C. E. Gunderson, chairman; Thomas J. Donovan, refreshments; A. Lindfried, motion pictures; Frank Thomas, decorations, and George W. Verdi, publicity.

FILM ACTRESS SENT TO JAIL

Jane McSherry Accused of Defrauding Hotels of Board Bills

New York, Aug. 24.—Jane McSherry, a film actress, known in private life as Mrs. Henry Eppler, twenty-four, of Baltimore, Md., was sentenced to serve from six months to three years in the penitentiary after being convicted in the court of special sessions of defrauding the Town House Club at No. 71 Central Park West, of a sum totalling $210.

The screen artist is alleged by court officials to have left a trail of unpaid hotel bills in several of the large Eastern cities, totalling close to $1,000. Miss May Mangan, prosecution officer, told the court that Mrs. Eppler had defrauded the Sherman Square, Great Northern, Biltmore, Belmont, Chatham, Hamilton and Bayville hotels in New York, the Copley Square Boston, and the St. James and Ritz-Carlton in Philadelphia.

On the specific charge on which she was sentenced it was alleged that Mrs. Eppler, her mother and five-year-old son registered at the Town House Club on June 29, and left without paying the bill.

In her testimony Mrs. Eppler stated that she had received $500 a week while engaged in the movies, and that she intended to pay the bills which she had incurred as soon as she was re-engaged.

TROLLEY TRUCE TO GIVE HYDE PARK 10-CENT FARE

If the trustees of the Boston Elevated and Eastern Massachusetts Railroads can agree on terms for the operation of the Hyde Park street railway lines, the residents of that section will receive service for a single 10-cent fare by the action of the City Council in voting to establish a reserve fund of $350,000 to insure the "L" against any loss in revenue.

Trustee John P. Stevens of the "L" told the Council the road is ready to proceed with the operation as soon as an operating agreement is reached with the Eastern Massachusetts.

WEDDING OR JAIL, IS DEMAND OF DIVORCEE

Unless her former chauffeur marries her, Mrs. Carrie Drew, formerly of Franklin Park, Cliftondale, will prosecute him on charges of larceny against him in Niagara Falls, N. Y. James Eaton, the chauffeur, has been arrested in Detroit and taken to Niagara Falls, charged with taking $750 from a trunk belonging to Mrs. Drew while the latter was staying at a hotel. She is a divorcee. According to the police, Eaton denies taking the money and prefers jail to marriage. He declares, the police say, that Mrs. Drew followed him to Niagara Falls.

TELLS OF EVILS THAT MENACE FAMILY LIFE

Divorces, limitation of growing families and particulation of women in industry were discussed to the three evils that menace the family life of America, by Rev. Frederick Siedenburg, S. J., of Woodstock college, before teachers from parochial schools of the archdiocese of Boston at the opening of the eleventh annual teachers' institute in Boston College Hall. He is giving fifteen lectures on "Modern Social Problems" at the five-day conference.

MURPHY THINKS TWO FERRYBOATS ENOUGH

Announcement by Fire Commissioner John R. Murphy that the two ferryboats contracted for would provide ample fire protection to East Boston was not joyously received by the City Council. The council had requested this information with the hope that the commissioner would withdraw the petition, as the council has to date refused to rescind a $400,000 ferry order for a third boat.

FIND NORTH END SAILOR WITH BAD GASH ON NECK

William Roach, a seaman, 44 years old, of No. 325 Hanover street, North End, was found in the basement of his home today with a severe wound in his neck, evidently caused by a knife that lay beside him. At the police station he refused to state a reason for his alleged attempts at suicide. The police say he has been acting queerly for some time.

NESSON DEFIED BY 50 TENANTS

Ordered to Vacate After Protesting Rent Raises, They Intend to Ignore Landlord

That about fifty tenants of Israel Nesson in the Denmark and Monadnock apartments, Dudley street, Dorchester, have been ordered out while the Commission on the Necessaries of Life was doing its utmost to effect an agrement between Nesson and the tenants was revealed at the continued hearings in the Nesson case.

Thomas J. Franklin, representing the tenants, told the commission that the notices of eviction were served upon the tenants a few hours before the commission began its second public hearing and its second public attempt to persuade Nesson to reduce his proposed rent boosts. They are ordered to leave by August 31, Franklin said.

"WANTS WHOLE CARCASS."

This charge, with the accusations that Nesson continues to demand his "pound of flesh," and the positive statement by the tenants that they will fight Nesson in the courts to the last ditch, featured the hearing.

"Have you power to make a recommendation?" asked J. S. Keeler, who occupies an apartment in the Monadnock and who was one of the spokesmen of tenants who appeared before the commission for a second time to enter their protest against Nesson.

"We have, and we propose to make a recommendation!" was the reply supplied Eugene C. Hultman, chairman of the commission.

"Have the landlords usually complied with your recommendations?"

"They have, in hundreds of cases," said Commissioner Charles H. Adams.

"Do you think he will in this case?" Keeler asked.

"You've seen the man?" replied Adams.

"Yes, and he wants his pound of flesh," said a woman tenant in the audience.

"He wants the whole carcass," interjected another.

$42.50 TO $75 RAISE.

"My increase was 87.77 per cent., and I have been there twenty-one years," said Albert W. Robinson from the audience. "And I have painted and papered the house and kept it in good repair."

Mrs. A. Power of No. 46 St. Botolph street said her rent was successively increased from $42.50 to $60 and $75. "I am living there because I can't find another place," she said. "Two of my children can't be used because of bedbugs."

Chairman Hultman announced that the meeting had been called following the original attempt to conciliate the difference between Nesson and 100 tenants in Boston and Cambridge who have protested against his rent increases.

"We have received certain figures from him," said Chairman Hultman, "but they are not entirely satisfactory and we have asked for further information which we expect to have in twenty-four hours. We want the assistance of your committee in certifying his figures."

OFFERED TO PAY $5 MORE.

"In accordance with your instructions," said Albert Franklin, I had a conference with Nesson. He offered to reduce his proposed rent increases of $6.50, as requested to be three, they voted unanimously to reject the offer. We made a counter offer, agreeing to a $5 increase."

"Is there a considerable difference between his offer and your offer?" Chairman Hultman asked.

"A very considerable difference," said Mr. Franklin. "His increase is now was between 72 and 74 per cent. He might as well ask me to pay $60 as $37.50.

"We have today received notices of eviction. I understand that the notices were received by all, including the two or three who may have settled with him. Nesson said that he had other rooms ready for us, and when we asked him where those rooms they were, he said, 'Oh, perhaps you may not like them.'"

TO KEEP KITCHENS.

"We are determined to fight. We are going to fight it out in the courts, and if he tries to put us out the first week in September we will find that he has got a mighty hard job on his hands.

"We'll go to court on the question of his exorbitant increases in rentals and the judge, among other things, will determine the time we will stay and the rent we will pay. For my part I would just as soon see a master appointed to go into this entire case of Nesson's rents and the ownership of the property."

A committee of the tenants will meet with the Commission tomorrow afternoon to compare their figures with the figures to be submitted by Nesson.

THE DEAF HEAR

"It was so deaf that the engineer for whom I flew to London thought he made me hear that he said something about 'something doing.' You had better get something done for your ears," said Mr. Fred Hastie, 142 Brownell street, Providence, R. I. "I am a locomotive fireman, but have retired and am employed on the Boston & Maine R. R. I also had ringing noises in my ears—they are extremely annoying. I was treated by a local specialist, but the treatment was so severe that I left him and consulted another. Upon doctor, she advised the removal of my adenoids and tonsils. I had this done at the hospital, but my ears were no better. I read of the Osmo-Chemic Physicians and their remarkable success in restoring hearing to ears long dead to sound. I had them treat me, and I am delighted, for I hear again and the noises are gone."

The wonderful power of the X-RAY TREATMENT is proved by the fact that they are accomplishing wonderful results in diseases of long standing.

Senate Committee Demands Leaders Prove Charges of Big Campaign Funds

Chicago, Aug. 24.—Leaders of both the Democratic and Republican parties were ordered to appear here next Monday before the Senate committee which is investigating election expenses.

Senator Kenyon, chairman of the committee, was directed to telegraph to Governor Cox, Democratic presidential nominee, to either come in person or send a representative to present any evidence he may have to substantiate his charges that the Republicans are raising a $15,000,000 campaign fund.

Will Hays, chairman of the Republican executive committee, and George White, who holds the same position in the Democratic organization, were ordered to be on hand. Party treasurers, Fred W. Upham, Republican, and Wilbur Marsh, Democrat, were also instructed to be here and to bring all papers and data pertaining to campaign contributions.

Cox to Prove Charges as He Sees Fit

Dayton, O., Aug. 24.—Governor James M. Cox will make public "as he sees fit and in such manner he sees fit" the information he claims to have in support of his charge that the Republicans are raising a "slush fund" of at least $15,000,000 to buy the presidency.

The Democratic presidential candidate made this statement after he had received from Senator William S. Kenyon of Iowa, chairman of the Senate sub-committee investigating campaign funds, a telegram calling on him for proof of his charges. The Governor announced that he plans to make public his evidence in campaign speeches this week. He will speak in Evansville, Ind., Pittsburgh, New Haven and New York city.

ROSENTHAL CASE LAWYER IS DEAD IN IRELAND

New Haven, Ct., Aug. 24.—James Sullivan, counsel for "Bald Jack" Rose during the Rosenthal murder case, that resulted in the electrocution of Police Lieutenant Becker and four gunmen, is dead at his home in Ireland, according to a message received here.

Sullivan was arrested in Ireland following the arrest of Sir Roger Casement. Sullivan proved his innocence and was liberated without being brought to trial. At one time he was United States Minister to San Domingo.

THINK DEAD WOMAN FOUL PLAY VICTIM

New York, Aug. 24.—A scar across the right eye led the authorities to suspect that violence, and not drowning, caused the death of an unidentified woman, whose body was found on the rocks under the guns of Fort Wadsworth, Staten Island.

A strange feature of the case is that the woman's clothing was wet only from the head to the waist, while her skirt and shoes and stockings were dry. She was about forty years old and weighed 135.

NORTH ADAMS MAN HURT IN MOTORCYCLE CRASH

North Adams, Aug. 24.—As a result of his motorcycle crashing into a fence in North Pownal, Vt., Alex Bushack of No. 35 Witt street is at the North Adams Hospital in a serious condition, suffering from multiple cuts and bruises and probable internal injuries.

Three Russian Armies Wiped Out; Warsaw Rejects Soviet Terms, London Reports

corrected, stating that Budenny's army could not advance northward and was retiring toward the east.

This army is operating in Galicia, around Lemberg. According to the Polish General Staff all danger to Lemberg has been averted and "The Reds' hopes in the North (Poland) have been smashed."

London Hears That Poles Reject Russian Terms

By International News Service.

London, Aug. 24.—Reports were current in semi-official circles this afternoon that Poland has notified the allies she has rejected the following Russian peace terms:

1—Disarmament of the Polish army.

2—Creation of an army of Polish workers.

3—Distribution of free agents of land to all Polish families whose members served in the war.

Poland is reported to have lodged protest with the Russian delegation at Minsk against the Soviet's announcement that it will retain a Russian army of 500,000 men. Poland holds that a Russian army of this size is excessive.

Violent fighting is raging in the vicinity of Lomza (eighty miles north of Warsaw) and Bielostok (fifty miles northeast of Warsaw) said a Soviet War Office communique wirelessed from Moscow today.

200 Strike in Portland

Lewiston, Me., Aug. 24.—Two hundred laborers employed by the H. P. Cummings Construction Company of Portland, working at the Bates cotton mills here, walked out on strike when their pay was reduced from 60 to 50 cents an hour.

New Process Removes Superfluous Hair Roots!

Women troubled with unsightly hairy growths will be delighted to hear that they can now actually remove the hair entire—roots and all—easily, quickly, harmlessly! It is as simple as a dab of liquid, powder, paste, or electric needle.

The new phenatine process is not to be compared at all with any other method. Nothing like it ever discovered. It causes the hair roots to come out before your very eyes, leaving the skin smooth and hairless as a baby's. Its action is so positive, so certain, druggists generally report phenomenal sales for phenatine. It is non-poisonous, non-irritating, non-inconvenient—and to prove it we send a small stick of phenatine today, follow the simple instructions and see will be wonderfully surprised.—Advertisement.

CALLS FOR CAR RIDES AT COST

Street Railway Commission, Reporting to Wilson, Urges Drastic Changes

after lines in Cleveland, Cincinnati, Dallas, Montreal and other cities.

2—Furnishing rides at cost, operating companies should be allowed a fixed return on their investment, the value of which to be determined by agreement.

3—Street railway managements, employes and the public each have a solemn duty to perform, each toward the other.

4—All labor disputes should be settled voluntarily or by arbitration and the award of such a board should be final and binding on both parties.

5—Public ownership and operation are undesirable save where private operation has failed to give the public the service it demands. However, the right of the public to own and operate all public utilities should be plainly recognized.

6—Where street railways are extended into outlying territory in a way to benefit private property the cost should be borne by the private interests to the extent of the benefit acquired and such extensions should not be included in the total valuation of the railway system upon which a fair profit is guaranteed.

7—Street railway franchises should not be for any specified time, or the fare to be charged fixed. Conditions should govern both.

The whole electric railway enterprise, the report stated, is in dire straits.

MILLIONS ARE NEEDED.

The report estimates that from $175,000,000 to $200,000,000 annually will be necessary if the future needs of the industry are to be met. Restored confidence on the part of the public, it emphatically stated, is one of the vital necessities.

The plan of the commission is that rides shall be furnished to the public at the lowest possible actual cost while the investor shall be guaranteed a fixed return on his holdings. The importance of arbitration "as the basis for the financial return of the company" was emphasized. This, it is suggested, might also be the basis upon which lines may be, if desired, taken over by the municipality. "The public should know what it is paying for," the report says, and this is impossible "without knowing what the property is worth."

On the subject of fares the report declared the fixed, uniform fare is "a broken reed" and that "public control must be flexible enough to enable the street railways to secure sufficient revenue to pay the entire cost of service rendered."

When a given fare is found to produce profits above a fair return, it is explained, the money should go back into the pockets of the public by an automatic reduction in the fare.

The elimination of special assessments for sprinkling, paving, bridges, etc., is recommended on the ground that the entire community, particularly the automobile owner, gets more benefit than the street car rider.

The "fitney," the report urges, should be regarded as a common carrier and placed under public regulation.

Street railway managements are advised that their first duty is to service the public with highest efficiency at the lowest cost. Employes the same, but they should be given decent wages and hours of work and the right to deal collectively through representatives.

The public must supervise control of its street railway properties, plan a fair valuation upon them and guarantee a fair return on the investment.

On the other hand, both strikes and lockouts should be barred.

Chaos faces the industry, the report declared, unless credit is restored and co-operation between public, management and employes established.

'Cat-Step' to Supplant 'Shimmy' and Jazz

New York, Aug. 24.—The fox trot has been with us for years. We have "walked the dog" and "limped the lame duck" and the animals are still in demand. Today the National Association of Dancing Masters greeted a dancing public with the cat-step. A young man in white flannels described it. "Drop, rush, run, run. Right left, click, click" (meaning the heels).

The cat-step is the dancing masters' idea of how the shimmy and jazz music may be cast into the discard. They intend to have it supplant the shivery kind of art.

Report That Every Home Not Flying Union Jack Has Been Burned

By International News Service.

Belfast, Aug. 24.—Troops were rushed from the Belfast barracks today to quell a new outbreak of disorder at Lisburn, where Police Inspector Swanzey was shot to death Sunday. Widespread looting was reported, and every house at Lisburn that did not display the Union Jack is said to have been burned.

The mother and sisters of Police Inspector Swanzey issued a public appeal urging the people to restrain themselves, but it was disregarded.

London, Aug. 24.—The murder of Police Inspector Swanzey at Lisburn on Sunday, and other British officials, is attributed to professional gunmen imported from the United States, says an official dispatch to the evening News today.

U. S. RETAILERS TO UNITE

Felix Vorenberg's Idea Carried Out at Big Meeting Held in New York

Backed by Boston merchants, plans for a Council of National Retail Associations were approved at a meeting of delegates representing more than 20,000 retailers at the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York.

Felix Vorenberg, vice-president of the Gilchrist Company of this city, presided at the gathering called by the National Drygoods Association, which adopted a plan for federation he had advocated vainly for years.

The Council of National Retail Associations will include the five prominent National Retail Associations. These consist of the National Dry Goods Association, the National Association of Retail Clothiers, the National Shoe Retailers' Association, the National Garment Retailers' Association and the Retail Millinery Association of America.

The council represents the consummation of the several years' discussion in the efforts to unite associations which cover related and, in some cases, overlapping fields. Question of membership and independence of action have hitherto prevented any definite action.

The plans agreed upon at the meeting will be submitted for ratification to each body represented.

Mr. Vorenberg, who is also vice-president of the National Dry Goods Association, expressed satisfaction at the realization of his ideas. Mr. Vorenberg said:

"When I first proposed the matter before a assemblage of retail merchants, I was more than laughed at; I was nearly thrown off the platform. The change in conditions, however, has shown retailers that they must stick together and act as a unit in matters affecting the craft.

"The federation idea has gone through in many States and now it will be a national matter and every retailer who is in an association is going to get the benefit of it."

EVERY OPPONENT DANGEROUS, DECLARES CHAMPION DEMPSEY

TRAINING HARD FOR MISKE

Lighter Opponent Is Not Underrated by Present Heavyweight Title Holder

By JACK DEMPSEY, Heavyweight Champion of the World.

Shortly after I won the championship from Jess Willard, the vast bulk of pugilistic fans rose up and classed Billy Miske as my most formidable rival; the one man in all America who had a real chance to slam me down to defeat.

It was pointed out. Miske and Willie Meehan are the only men that I failed to stop since my comeback in the ring, more than three years ago. It was elaborated upon at length that Miske, having traveled sixteen rounds with me, "is the man that Dempsey must fight to establish full claim to the championship. Dempsey can't put him away," it was said. I thought otherwise and announced that I would give Miske another fight at the earliest possible moment.

Made Good Promise to Miske

As soon as I was ready to get into the ring again I made good on that promise—and Miske and I are to mix it for twelve rounds in Benton Harbor, Mich., on Labor Day. The fickleness of certain portions of fandom already is apparent through statements that in choosing Miske as an opponent I have selected a "set-up." Quairt, isn't it, that a year ago they called Miske my greatest rival; now they term him a "set-up."

It is a rank injustice to make such a statement regarding Miske and it isn't playing fair with a really great fighter, one who is amazingly clever, remarkably courageous and who has ever been a credit to his chosen profession.

Miske Now Fully Recovered

Miske was sick for several months, but, according to my best information, he completely recovered from the attack more than six months ago and right now is conditioning himself back to the Miske of old—the Miske who beat Bill Brennan, Tom Cowler, Charlie Weinert, Jim Flynn and a host of others.

Those who have seen him work declare that not only does he look as good as he did in 1918, but that greater experience and a little more weight has made him even more powerful than ever before. And yet some folks—who haven't seen him at all—call him a "has-been" and a "set-up."

Failed to Stop Miske Twice

I have battled Miske twice—and on both occasions I failed to stop him. In my career I have fought about fifty-seven battles and knocked out something like forty-five opponents. But I failed to number Miske in the list, although I shot at him for sixteen rounds. All of which would seem to indicate that Miske is all that his admirers claim for him—a moving, shifting target, extremely hard to hit, a man of great cleverness, splendid gameness—a really great ringman.

I don't know how the majority of pugilistic fans regard Billy Miske at the present time. From statements I imagine that there is a feeling that Miske would not prove quite as tough as Jess Willard, Harry Wills, Bill Brennan or some of the others. But I want to point out that Miske, in going sixteen rounds with me, accomplished more than Willard, Fulton, Morris, Brennan, Smith, Pelkey and half a dozen others did put together. And as for Willie—well, Miske travelled longer with me than Harry Wills will ever be able to travel.

REDS ARE PICKED BY STALLINGS

Braves' Boss Gives His Views on Flag Race While Team Bows to Cubs

Chicago, Aug. 24.—The Cubs won the first argument from the Braves of Boston, 5 to 1, and discovered that bad luck has been trailing an outfit other than Chicago.

George Stallings, who bosses the Boston outfit for George Washington Grant, let loose the information that he, too, has suffered of injuries. Charley Pick, a former Cub, broke his leg just before the Braves started West, and now Pitcher Watson, who was in the midst of a winning streak of six consecutive victories, is laid up with an attack of tonsilitis.

Stallings Gives Views on Flag Race

"Stallings has murmured a few words about the hectic National League race that may prove interesting, inasmuch as it appears as if the White Sox may glean another gonfalon. He has spoken substantially as follows: "I thought a few weeks ago that the Giants would win the National League pennant, but now I am inclined to think Cincinnati will repeat. That club plays very steady baseball. It went bad a while back, but now seems to be going again.

"Brooklyn was held on because it had seven good pitchers all working well. With a staff like that a manager could pull out a pitcher early in the game or whenever it became advisable to use a pinch hitter, and could send in a relief pitcher without weakening his staff at all. In other words, the manager could use two pitchers a day and still have plenty of fresh men to work the remainder of the series.

"When you figure that this would be necessary only about twice a week, it is no wonder that Brooklyn has gone so well. Outside of the pitching I don't think so much of the Brooklyn club. It hasn't the speed.

Powell's Homer Only Run for Braves

"The Giants made a wonderful spurt, but one always must remember that Cincinnati has a very steady ball club."

BENNETT A. A. PITCHER HOLDS BUICK TO ONE HIT

The Boston Buick team met defeat at the hands of the Bennett A. A. 2 to 0, in an eight-inning twilight contest at Lincoln Park, Somerville. Art Welch, the winning pitcher, let down the visitors with one hit.

Dempsey Signed for Carpentier Bout

Chicago, Aug. 24.—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, has agreed to fight Georges Carpentier, the French champion, for the world's heavyweight title under the auspices of Tex Rickard, who promoted the Willard-Dempsey fight at Toledo, in which the champion won his title.

Although the contract has been signed, a "gentleman's agreement" between Rickard and Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, has been entered into, according to an exclusive statement given by Kearns today.

"We have closed with Rickard for the Carpentier match," Kearns said. "We have also closed with Rickard for the Brennan fight, and when Dempsey meets either Carpentier or Brennan it will be under Rickard's auspices.

LEARN LESSON AT OLYMPICS

U. S. Athletes the Victors, but Find Out New Secrets on Training

By "TED" MEREDITH, American Quarter and Half-Mile Champion and Famous Olympic Winner.

Antwerp, Aug. 24.—The field and track events of the second modern Olympic games are over and America stands forth with 210 points—twice as many as its nearest rival, Finland, and ten more than Finland and Sweden, third, combined.

Behind the box score of the victory there is a high credit for the American team and for American athletics in the fact that the United States scored in twenty-five of the twenty-nine events. The highest number of points scored by the Americans in a single event was seventeen and the lowest one.

But we have learned something, and if that learning is made use of, four years from now we can do better and will have to. The perfecting of men in the various field and track events is spreading over the world. The contests were more truly international this time than ever before—except, however, the fact that the Central Powers were not represented.

The one big lesson was that of training. To win at the Olympic games, a man practically has to be the best on earth in his line. He is competing against the best from every other nation. To be at his very best he needs several things—familiarity with the track on which the races are to be run, acclimation and a thorough, careful training.

The United States defeated Greece in the water polo contest of the Olympic games today by the score of 7 to 0.

The American team was composed of Perry McGillivray, Harry Hebner, Jenson and Vosberg, of the Illinois A. C.; O. H. Taylor of Chicago, and Vollmer of the N. Y. A. C., and Carson of the Olympic Club.

EVANS AND HAGEN HOLD BRITISH GOLFERS EVEN

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 24.—Walter Hagen, former United States open champion, and Chick Evans, Jr., halved their 36-hole match with Edward Ray and Harry Vardon on the links of the South Bend Country Club. Each pair won eighteen holes. While playing the second eighteen, Hagen lowered the course record to 69. The former record, made by his partner last year, was 73.

GRAND CIRCUIT HORSES ARRIVE AT READVILLE

After several weeks of racing on the Grand Circuit and the half-mile tracks of the Middle West, the stable of Billy Flemming has arrived at the Readville track.

Flemming's string came direct from Cranwood Park, Cleveland, where he raced The Boston Man, 2:08¼, last week, getting second money with the son of The Northern Man, 2:06¼.

FAREWELL GAME FOR INDIANS

Presence of Speaker Does Much to Brace Team in Battles With Sox

By NICK FLATLEY.

The Cleveland Indians made their ultimate effort to better their standing here today at the Fenway. After the single game they go to other parts and there finish one of the bitterest campaigns in American League history. Boston will see them no more until 1921, and sends them off with nothing but the best wishes for success. With the Red Sox out of it, the Indians are the big local favorite for the game.

This was shown at the Monday double-header, when some 15,000 fans turned out, the biggest week-day gathering seen here since the days when the native team was up there fighting for the flag.

For today's game the Sox had Meyers, an Indian a short time ago, prepared for pitching work. Wilie Clark, the newest Indian flinger, was due to show himself to this neck of the woods.

There was slight chance that Manager Tris Speaker would get into the game, except in an emergency. The great centre fielder is a very sick individual and needs plenty of rest to get back into normal playing trim.

Speaker's Presence Braces Up Indians

His very presence has worked wonders with the team, however, and the Indians were a far different aggregation from the outfit that submitted so easily to defeat Saturday. There was fight and spirit evident. Even though Speaker himself couldn't provide his usual share.

He got into both games, courage being his middle name, but the strain was too much for him, and he had to retire. He has lost some fifteen pounds since last Tuesday and is just beginning to recover from an attack of ptomaine poisoning that he suffered along with his other troubles.

Manager Tris may not win the pennant this year, but he surely has established himself as an able and resourceful manager, and a real fighter—a director who will undoubtedly give to grab helping when too much misfortune doesn't camp on his trail.

The very fact that he's around is a great tonic for the Indians, and they are gradually getting to believe that they can still cop the gonfalon, which assures plenty of future bother for the White Sox and the Yanks.

Games Hard Fought and Well Pitched

Both games of the double header were hard fought, and marked by fine pitching. The Indians romped off with opener, 2 to 1, because Ray Caldwell was a bit steadier toward the finish than Sam Jones. Large Ray had plenty of stuff on the ball and held the locals to five hits. Three of them were bunched by Menosky, Hendrix and McInnis in the fourth and formulated the one run.

David Gregg, 3d, a fifteen-year-old golfer, won his match from E. J. Duffy, 4 and 2.

C. A. C. TO OPEN FRIDAY NIGHT

Three Ten-Round Bouts and a Six Arranged by Manager Bob McKirdy

By JACK CONWAY.

Bob McKirdy came to bat today with the gleeful tidings that there would be thirty-six rounds of boxing at the re-opening of the Commercial A. C. Friday night. Inasmuch as the West End club will stage the only Boston show of the week, a large crowd is sure to be on hand to witness the festivities.

Three ten-round bouts and a six-session affair will be presented. The final ten-round number will find Carlo Armstrong of the North End battling with Battling McGreary of Cambridge.

Young Gould, Brockton lightweight, will oppose Billy Woods of Manchester, N. H., in another ten-round affair. When these youths met recently at Quincy the going was so rough that both boys were put out of the ring. Each claimed the other was to blame for the unethical milling and as a result the fans will be eager to see the differences between the rivals settled in the ring.

Teddy Murphy of the West End will oppose Young Bova of the same district in another ten-round mill, while George Rice of New York and Tommy Nee of South Boston are down to travel six rounds distance.

Gardini Winning Mat Bouts in the West

Renato Gardini, Italian wrestling star, is winning steadily in his Western campaign. Paul Mortorson was his latest victim in a match staged in Chicago. Mortorson, it will be remembered, was the first mat star to cause Joe Stecher serious opposition. When Stecher was meeting all-comers a couple of years ago Mortorson furnished a surprise by holding the Nebraska farmer even for an hour. Gardini has two more matches in the West. These tussles should put him in splendid condition for his finish match with Bill Demetral, which will be staged at the Revere Cycle Track on the afternoon of Labor Day. Demetral has clashed with Stecher, Lewis and the other leading wrestlers and is not worried over the outcome of the meeting on the holiday.

Waldeck Zbyszko will have Frank Tosko as an opponent in another feature number. Soldier Chevolero of France will clash with Zale Havappa in a preliminary.

Vincent Martin Eager to Get Britt Bout

Vincent Martin, New England featherweight champion will try to prove he is entitled to a contest with Frankie (Young) Britt when he meets Jimmy (Young) Sacco of East Boston in a twelve-round bout at the Coliseum A. A. of Quincy Thursday night. Martin didn't experience much trouble while battling the leading 122-126-pounders hereabouts, and is of the opinion he will also keep winning while clashing with the lightweights.

Tony Vatlan of Brighton will meet Johnny Brown of Newport in the semi-final of eight frames. Larry Maina of South Boston will clash with Scotty Welsh of Quincy in another eight-session affair, while Fred Rosso of Somerville is down to swap blows with Tim Nolan.

Kloby Considering Bid for Go With Doyle

Young Kloby, 'tis said, is considering an offer for a bout with Paul Doyle. The Y. D. champion apparently realizes that he cannot hope to keep dodging a meeting with the local welterweight forever. Kloby says he will be ready to fight next month.

3 PAIRS TO RACE AT REVERE

International Team Race Is Big Feature at the Oval Tomorrow Night

An international three-cornered motor-paced team race will be the big feature at the Revere cycle track tomorrow evening. The countries represented will be the United States, Italy and France. The race will be over the fifty-mile course and the riders will be Vincent Madonna and Tony Colombatto, as the Italian representatives; Leon Didier and Daniel Lavilade wearing the tri-color of France and George Chapman and Percy Lawrence as stars for the United States.

The race promises to be one of the best ever staged at the local track and is the first event of its kind in the bike sport for more than ten years.

The regular card of amateur and professional events will complete the program.

50 ROUNDS OF BOXING AT REVERE OPEN-AIR SHOW

There will be fifty rounds of boxing at an open-air show at the Revere Cycle Track Thursday night under the direction of the Revere Post of the American Legion.

Joe Tiplitz of Philadelphia will meet South Boston Johnnie Downes in the feature bout of ten rounds. Harry Kid Brown, Philadelphia featherweight, will have Harry Carlson of Brockton as an opponent in another ten-round contest. Paul Doyle of this city will box ten frames with Eddie McAndrews of Philadelphia. Young Montreal of Providence is down to battle ten sessions with Harney Snyder of Roxbury, while Harry Martin of Providence and Freddie Madden of East Boston will open the show with a ten-round affair.

Frank Dorey has arranged the program for the Revere Post.

PITCHER CARL MAYS WHITEWASHES TIGERS

New York, Aug. 24.—Carl Mays of the Yankees, pitching his first game since he carved the ball which proved fatal to Ray Chapman, shut out the Detroit Tigers, 10 to 0. Mays was batted safely on ten occasions, but managed to keep the enemy hits well scattered. The New York pitcher was given an ovation by the fans.

BRITTON AND BOGASH BATTLE TO DRAW

Bridgeport, Ct., Aug. 24.—Jack Britton and Louis Bogash boxed a twelve-round draw here. The former was kissed several times for his indifferent work.

CHAPTER XXII.—Continued.

"YOU'D be delightful on a winged horse," he said.

"Do you think so?"

"I suspect it. What did you do to the Follies?"

"Nothing very interesting. Have you seen the Follies?"

"You ought to know I haven't," he said reproachfully. "Do you suppose I could have forgotten you?"

She rose and dropped him a Florodora curtsey. They were getting on very well. She glanced demurely at the music-box. He jumped up and turned it on. The battered disc creaked out a tango.

"Shall I take up those rugs?" he inquired.

"What on earth would Miss Davis say if she found us dancing?"

"She isn't here to say anything. Shall I?"

"Very well. . . . I'll help you."

They dragged the rugs aside.

The studio was all golden with the sun, now, and the brilliant rays bathed them as she laid her gloved hand in his and his arm encircled her waist.

Wonderful Dancer

She was a wonderful dancer; her supple grace and professional perfection enchanted him.

From time to time he left her to crank up the music-box; neither of them tired. Occasionally she glanced at her jewelled wrist-watch and ventured to voice her doubts as to the propriety of continuing in the imminence of Miss Davis' return.

"Then let's come up to my studio," he said. "I've a music-phone of sorts. We can dance there until you're tired, and then you can come down and see Miss Davis."

She demurred; the music-box ran down with a squawk.

"Shall we take one more chance here?" he asked.

"No, it's too risky. Shall I run up to your place for just one little dance?"

"Come on!" he said, taking her hand.

They went out and he closed the door. Then, hand-in-hand, laughing like a pair of children, they sped up the stairs and arrived breathless before his door, which, he upbraided himself a little minute they were dancing again while a scratched record croaked out a fox-trot.

"I must go," she said, resting one gloved hand on his arm. "I'd love to stay, but I mustn't."

Never Shall Forget

"First," he said, "we'll have tea."

"No!"

But presently they were seated on his desk, a plate of sweet biscuits between them, their glasses of sherry touching.

"Unknown but fascinating girl," he said gaily, "I drink to your health and fortune. Never shall I forget our dance together; never shall I forget the charming stranger who took tea with me."

"Nor shall I forget you!—you very nice boy," she said, looking at him with smiling intentness.

"Would it spoil if we saw each other again?"

"You know that such delightful encounters never bear repetition," she answered. "Now I'm going. Farewell!"

She laughed at him, touched her glass with her lips, set it aside, and slipped to the floor.

"Good-by," she said. He caught her at the door, and she turned and looked up gravely.

"Don't spoil it," she whispered, disengaging herself.

So he released her, and she stretched out her hand, smiled at him and stepped out. The music-phone continued to play gaily.

A girl who was coming upstairs saw a woman leave Cleland's studio, and as the pretty visitor sped lightly past her, the girl who was mounting, turned and watched her. Then she resumed her ascent, came slowly to Cleland's open door, and stood there resting a moment as though out of breath.

Cleland, replacing the rugs, glanced up and caught sight of Stephanie and the quick blood burnt his face.

She came in as though still a trifle weary from the ascent. Neither spoke. She glanced down at the two empty wine glasses on his desk, saw the decanter, the biscuits and the cigarettes. The music-phone was expiring raucously.

"Who is that girl?" she asked in an even, colorless tone.

"A girl I met."

"Do you mind telling me her name?"

"I—don't know it," he said getting redder.

"Oh, shall I enlighten you?"

"Thank you."

"She's Mary Cliff of the Follies. I've seen her dance."

"Really," he said carelessly.

Stephanie leaned against the desk, resting one hand on it. An odd sense of mental fatigue possessed her; things were not clear in her mind; she was not very sure of what she was saying.

"I came up to say—that I'm sorry I quarrelled. . . . I'm sorry now that I came. I'm going in a moment. . . . You've already had tea, I see. So you won't care for any more."

After a flushed silence he said:

"Did you have a successful lesson, Steve?"

"I've had two—lessons. Yes, they were quite—successful."

"You seem tired."

"No." She turned and walked to the door. He opened it for her in silence.

"Good night," she said.

"Good night."

CHAPTER XXIII.

CLELAND'S unhappy interpretation of the episode was masculine and therefore erroneous—the interpretation of a very young man whose reverence for the restless sex might require revision some day or other unless he died exceedingly young. For he concluded, now, that he had thoroughly disgusted Stephanie Quest first, by his vulgar flirtation with Lady Button-eyes, then by losing his temper and admitting to her his own ridiculous materialism; and, further-more and flagrantly, by his hideous behavior with a pretty girl whose name even he had not known when he entertained her at his impromptu tea-dansant.

Jim saw himself quite ruined in the unemotional gray eyes of the girl, who herself was so coldly aloof from the ignoble emotions lurking ever and furtively in the masculine animal.

He had had little enough chance with Stephanie, even when his conduct had been exemplary. Now he was dreadfully certain that his chances were less than none at all; that he had done himself in. What had he to hope of her now?

To this unconventional, yet proud, pure-hearted girl had been offered the very horrid spectacle of his own bad temper and reprehensible behavior. And, although there had been no actual harm in it, she could never, never understand or forgive it. Never!

Her virginal ears had been insulted by the cynical avowal of his own masculine materialism. Of the early, earthy, he had vaunted himself in his momentary exasperation —"of humanity, a shamelessly human example."

With her own incredulous, uncontaminated eyes she had seen him pocket Lady Burton-eye's telephone number. Her shrinking ears had heard the mutilated record in his music-phone dying out in a tipsy two-step; her outraged gaze had beheld a perfectly strange young girl's gaily informal exit from his own bachelor apartment, where sherry still stood in both glasses and the rugs lay scattered in disorder against the wall. Elimination was naturally the portion he had to expect. And he gloomily schooled himself to endure annihilation.

Thin People Need Phosphate Most In Hot Weather

Apt to Take on Good Healthy Flesh Even on Sweltering Days if Pure Phosphate Is Taken with Meals.

Druggists Dispense Nitro-Phosphate Because It is Real Organic Phosphate.

Thin men and women, nervous and constantly out of sorts, who want nerve force, energy, ambition and power of endurance, are just the people who will find a helpful friend in Nitro-Phosphate which is undoubtedly just what your nerve, blood and bone cells are begging for.

Phosphorus is a very important element for every living cell in your body. Without the necessary supply, keen minds grow dull and often stupid; oldtime ambition vanishes and a wretched feeling of exhausted power supplants that once-indomitable spirit so necessary to success in these strenuous times.

Nitro-Phosphate feeds the nerves direct with the phosphorus food elements they crave for.

As evidence of results in cases of thin, exhausted people, clinical tests in St. Catherine's Hospital, New York, showed that two patients gained in weight, one 23 pounds and the other 27, while organic phosphate was administered, and both patients claim they have not felt so well and strong in the past twelve years.

Such tests as these lead Frederick S. Kolle, M. D., Editor-in-Chief of Physicians' "Who's Who," an author of medical text books and member of Au-thor's Committee of America, Health League, Physicians' Legislative League, N. Y., to remark, "If I had my way Nitro-Phosphate should be prescribed by every doctor and used in every hospital."

And Joseph D. Harrigan, former Visiting Specialist to North Eastern Dispensary, says, "Let those who are weak, thin, nervous, anaemic or run-down, take a natural, unadulterated substance such as Nitro-Phosphate and you will soon see some astonishing results in the increase of nerve energy, strength of body and mind and power of endurance."

Nitro-Phosphate (the inexpensive organic phosphate) for those who are anxious to improve their health, is dispensed by all leading druggists in the original package.

CHAPTER L.

THE clock on the Summerfield City Hall struck 3, and Barbara was not asleep. She sighed and turned over restlessly. She was still thinking of the conversation she had had with John.

He disliked social functions. That was plain, in spite of his efforts to conceal it.

It was all clear to her now. He was engaged to a girl young enough to be his daughter. He was finding it hard to accommodate his ways to hers, although he was doing his best.

She was glad that she had told him not to bother about learning to dance. He had not attempted it since she had suggested this. Yet there were many other things that she liked that must bore him. She had not considered this until tonight. Now she must do so.

She had no right to sacrifice this man's comfort to her own pleasure. He loved her. Of that she was sure. But that did not justify her in making a martyr of him.

That he actually suffered from ennui she did not doubt. Mentally, she put Uncle Arthur in John's place and reflected on the dear man would groan inwardly at the foolish chatter and merry-making of boys like Charlie Hazard and Tom White, would yearn for home and silence. And Uncle Arthur and John were contemporaries.

What to Do?

Yet what must Barbara do? Was it her duty to decline invitations on John's account? Would he not be uncomfortable were she to do this?

"Something is wrong somewhere!" she murmured in the darkness.

Then, in a flash, she knew what was wrong.

A young girl was going to marry a man twenty-five years her senior. Spring and Autumn could never blend. It was not according to nature.

"Yet I am fond of him!" she told herself fiercely. "And he loves me. I wish he did not."

There was no denying that it was more for Uncle Arthur's sake than for John Brandon's that she was engaged. Yes—for Uncle Arthur's sake, and for her own—that she might have somebody to support her and not let her be a drag upon her relatives on their old age.

Such being the case, did duty demand that she pretend to the social affairs given by friends of her own generation? Did she owe this to her betrothed? She turned sick at the thought. She did not know how she could endure a long succession of evenings sitting quietly at home talking to John Brandon.

What if it were Robert Elliott?

The question thrust itself into her consciousness before she could ward it off. The quick bound of her heart told her that were Robert the one with whom she would spend undisturbed home-evenings, she could ask no greater joy.

Sitting up in bed she wrung her hands.

"What am I to do?" she moaned. "Can I never forget him—never put him out of my life? Oh, Bob, Bob!"

Yielding to Grief

She threw herself back upon her pillow in an abandonment of grief. She had fought off dangerous thoughts until she could fight them no longer. Tomorrow she would be John Brandon's betrothed again. Just for this one moment she must yield to her sorrow. She sobbed herself to sleep and dreamed that she was dancing with Robert Elliott, while John Brandon, lying back on an easy chair, slumbered calmly and peacefully. Even in her dream she was thankful that at last each man was getting what he wanted.

John Brandon walked back to his home deep in thought. Barbara's persistent questions had forced him to face matters as they were. Yes, the junketings and frolics of the young folk in the gay set of Summerville bored him to extinction.

Yet now that she had forced from him the mortifying confession that these social gatherings were not the type of recreation that he himself would choose, would the child continue to enjoy them?

Something Wrong

"There is something wrong somewhere!" he mused, using the very words in which his betrothed voiced a similar conclusion. "I love her too dearly to want her to change her manner of life. And I also love her enough to give her up were I not sure that she loves me.

"I could scarcely believe it even when her aunt assured me that Barbara cared for me. Even now I hardly dare believe that it is true, although my reason tells me that she would not have promised herself to me if she did not love me. But as she has done that, I must for her sake try to forget my age and be what she wants me to be. I wish I could have learned to dance as a young man can. But all I can do is to endeavor to make up to her for my deficiencies by giving her everything else she wishes.

"Perhaps," as he mounted his own steps and fitted his key into the lock, "when she is here alone with me, it will be easier. Strange that she, at twenty, and I, at forty-five, should have fallen in love! Cupid plays practical jokes sometimes!"

Bachelor Girl's Reflections

By HELEN ROWLAND

Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

A WOMAN is usually expert at picking out goods that won't run, shrink, fade or frazzle—but she is not always so lucky in picking out that kind of a husband.

Apparently, the more a chorus girl sees of men the better she loves "Poms" and "Pekes."

Marriage is a medley, composed of "Love's Sweet Song," Lohengrin, lullabies, jazz tunes, and battle hymns, with a Lorelei refrain running through it, which utterly spoils the sweet silence of bachelor reveries and maiden meditations.

A man's idea of the highest proof of his devotion to a woman is his irresistible impulse to make love to any other woman who happens to remind him of her.

Probably what the Serpent REALLY whispered to Eve, on that fatal day, was that apples were good for reducing the figure.

The vital problem that confronts a girl at this moment, is not the Fall campaign, but the question of whether to stay out and get a sunburned nose playing golf, or to stay in and keep beautiful, while she gives some other girl a chance at the only eligible man at the Summer resort.

What most mystifies a man about a woman is her seemingly diabolic ingenuity in answering his "unanswerable" arguments, and discovering his "reason" for doing things, when he didn't know he had any.

A man can fool a lot of women some of the time, and some women a lot of the time; but what makes a pessimist of him is his discovery that he can't fool the same woman, in the same way, all of the time.

The difference between a nail and a husband is that a nail must be driven in and coaxed out, while a husband has to be driven out mornings and coaxed in again evenings.

Household Suggestions

The best method of keeping carpets clean and in good condition is to sweep them once a week with a broom dipped in a solution of hot water and turpentine, using only a little turpentine. This not only revives the color wonderfully, but prevents moths harboring.

* * *

If these are stained with tea, glycerine is the best thing to use, but it must be applied before the linen is washed. Soap and water treatment is of no use. Rub the glycerine well into the (dry) linen on each side of the fabric, and leave for quite an hour, perhaps all night. By that time the stain will be loosened. Soak the cloth then in tepid water for a few minutes, and then wash in the usual way. Table napkins are treated in the same manner.

ABOUT OUR GOOD FRIEND

Warren

Copyright, 1920, by The Ledger Syndicate

WARREN

VARIATIONS — Warnett, Wareing, Waring, Warison, Fitzwarin, Fitzwarren, Warner.

RACIAL ORIGIN — Norman-French.

SOURCE—A given name; also an occupation.

HERE is a group of family names, all of which come from either of two sources; but from which it is impossible to state in the case of Warren, except where the individual is fortunate enough to be able to trace back the genealogy of his particular family to its origin.

Most of the family names in this group are the outgrowths of a given name which was quite widespread in medieval England, having been introduced by the Normans, but which has become obsolete today as a given name. There are, of course, to be found many men who bear Warren as their first names, but in virtually every case this is the result of the purely modern custom of using a family name as a given name.

The old name, in its Norman form, was originally "Guarin" or "Guerin," but under the Saxon influence it rapidly became softened into "Warin," in which form it fairly crowds the old records. Warnett comes from "Warinot's son," the "ot" being a diminutive ending. Wareing, Waring, Warison and Wasson all come from "Warin's-son," the "son" being dropped, for the most part, in the course of time. The "Fitz" variations are explained in the meaning of "fitz" as "son of."

Warren, however, often comes from the same source as Warner, which is the mediaeval word "Warrener," "Warener" or "Warner," from "Warren," a game preserve. The warrener was the officer who had charge of these forest wilds and naturally came to be known as "Jacke le Warner," "Richard de Waren," etc. Sons often followed the same calling as their father, and so such names in many cases lost their original meaning descriptive of occupation and became simply family "tags."

The name of Warren is so honored and so historic, particularly in Boston, that there is no need to mention the fact. Most of us, however, may hardly know that the first Warren on record in this country was Arthur Warren, who arrived here about 1635. He settled at Weymouth, where, not long after his arrival, he became a solid citizen, owning many lands, holding offices. One of the most distinguished Warrens in the old days is immortal in the history of Boston and the United States — General Joseph Warren, who fell at the Battle of Bunker Hill. He was a physician by profession, living on the site where now stands the American House. Elected a major-general in the Revolutionary armies, he was besides grand master of the Free Masons in the United States when h died.

Hopeless

A youth seated himself in the dentist's chair. He wore a wonderful striped silk shirt and an even more wonderful checked suit. He had the vacant stare that often goes with both. "I am afraid to give him gas," the dentist said to his assistant. "Why?" "Well," replied the dentist, "how shall I know when he is unconscious?"

COUNCIL PASSES CONSOLIDATION

Mayor's One-Year Battle to Merge Institutions Won by Watson's Vote

Speculation as to who will be the new commissioner of the Institutions Department is rife in City Hall today following the passage in the city council by a 5 to 4 vote of Mayor Peters' consolidation ordinance creating a $7,500 berth to supplant the Penal, Infirmary, Children's Institutions and Institutions' registrations departments and boards of trustees.

Opinion favors Thomas O'Brien, present $5,000 penal institutions commissioner. He favors Mayor Peters' plan for the gradual abolition of all the city inland institutions and the turning over of the care of the inmates to other city institutions or the State.

After a battle of more than a year during which the ordinance was twice defeated, Councillor "Jerry" Watson gained a victory for the Mayor by changing his vote. The measure was bitterly attacked by Councillor McLaughlin as insuring another step in what he termed is the effort of the State to dominate and control the institutions of the city of Boston, even to the details. "It is seeking to strangle forever the parochial school system so splendidly established in the city of Boston," he charged.

Councillors Watson, Hagan, Ford, Lane and Collins, with the first excepted, regarded as Good Government representatives, supported the ordinance, while Councillors Donoghue, Hinckley, McLaughlin and Moriarty, termed by the Mayor "the wilful four," voted against it.

CITY TO SPEND $153,600 TO IMPROVE PARKS

An expenditure of $153,600 from the Parkman Fund by the Park and Recreation Commission was authorized by the City Council. For Boston Common and Public Garden improvements $81,350 is to be spent, much of it to be devoted to new seats and walks near the Parkman bandstand. Improvements in Franklin Park will cost $44,500, according to the estimate of the commissioners; improvements in the Fens $12,000, and the construction of a fence $6,000.

BOSTON'S DEATH RATE DROPS BELOW NORMAL

Boston's death rate for the past week was below normal, according to the records of the Health Department. The deaths numbered 176, as compared with 213 in the preceding week. A lessening of the deaths by violence, Bright's disease and tuberculosis is ascribed as the cause for the low death rate. Twenty-eight of the deceased were non-residents.

SUGAR-SAVING HINT IN GOOD HOUSEKEEPING

I happened to place a pound of brown sugar, which had become very hard, in a covered dish with prunes. When I took the sugar out later, I found it as soft as when purchased. Any fruit will yield the same moisture and suggests a sure method for keeping the sugar moist.—September Good Housekeeping.

Alkali in Shampoos Bad For Washing Hair

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.—Advertisement.

New Hair Growth After BALDNESS

HAIR GROWN ON MR. BRITTAIN'S BALD HEAD BY INDIANS' MYSTERIOUS HAIR GROWER

My head at the top and back was absolutely bald. The scalp was shiny. An expert said that as he thought the hair roots were extinct, and there was no hope of ever having a new hair growth.

Yet now, at an age over 60, I have a luxuriant growth of soft, strong, lustrous hair. No trace of baldness. The pictures shown here are from my photographs.

Indians' Secret of Hair Growth

At a time when I had become discouraged at trying various hair lotions, tonics, specialists' treatments, etc., I came across, in my travels, a Cherokee Indian "medicine man" who had an elixir that he asseverated would grow my hair. Although I had but little faith, I gave it a trial. To my amazement a light fuzz soon appeared. It developed, day by day, into a healthy growth, and ere long my half was as prolific as in my youthful days.

Then I was astonished and happy to appreciate my state of mind mildly. Obviously, the hair roots had not been dead, but were dormant in the scalp, awaiting the fertilizing potency of the nutritious juices.

I negotiated for and came into possession of the principle for preparing this mysterious elixir, now called Kotalko, and reduced the recipe put into practical form by a chemist.

That my own hair growth was permanent has been amply proved. Many men and women, also children, have reported satisfactory results from Kotalko.

How YOU May Grow YOUR Hair

My honest belief is that hair roots rarely die even when the hair falls out through dandruff, fever, excessive dryness or other disorders. I have been told by experts that often when hair falls out the roots become imbedded within the scalp, covered by hard skin, so that they remain for a time like bulbs or seeds in a bottle which, will grow when fertilized. Shampoos which contain alkali and hair lotions which contain alcohol are enemies to the hair, as they dry it, making it brittle. Kotalko contains those elements of nature which give new vitality to the scalp and hair.

Stocks Weak; Money 7%; Exchange Lower; Trading Active

RAILS HIGHEST, STEELS OFF

Prices React Early and Fail to Rally; Market Active on the Decline

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were weak in New York at noon, failing to rally from the reaction which began early in the session. Rails showed the most strength, but were irregular at the end of the morning. Steels remained lower, while oils were firmer. Royal Dutch was the marked exception in this class.

Among weakest issues were Woolen common, Cuban-American Sugar, Strombergs, Studebaker, B. & Rubber and Worthington Pump. They were off a point or more. Most recessions were small. Among strong issues were Atlantic Gulf, Mexican Petroleum, Southern Pacific, St. Paul common and Reading Island. The market was active, first hour transactions totaling about 160,000 shares. Call loans renewed at 7 per cent. Foreign exchange rates were lower, demand sterling opening at $3.58¾.

MIXED AT START.

The price movement was mixed at the outset and but for rails the market would have had a bad start. Rails were a strong group, led by Reading, Southern Pacific and New York Central, and balanced losses by industrials and other classes. Rail gains averaged small, but were general. Within a few minutes there was a reaction and rails as well as other stocks sold below opening levels. Traders said the effort to hoodoo the list through bear tactics had not succeeded. For the first thirty minutes business was brisk. Steels were weak from the opening and what strength oils showed was soon overwhelmed by free offerings. Shipping shares, motors and sugars were quiet. So were equipments with the exception of Baldwin. Odd lot buying continued, but was of greatest importance to carriers. The latter were helped somewhat also by covering of shorts. Sentiment in regard to them is the best known in several years. But is is chiefly on the part of investors. Speculators are still committed to industrials. Very little interest is shown in mining shares. Much of the recent selling of stocks has been by pools.

FOREIGN NEWS NO FACTOR.

News from Europe was of the same tenor as for several days, but had no influence upon the market valuation of securities. The Polish situation was more of a factor than it was giving alarm and could be used to depress prices. Statements that the money strain has reached its peak inspire confidence, but lower rates are believed to be worked off. As neither speculation nor business will benefit much until reductions are actually made, Fullerton says, discount more than forecast. It has been some time since there has been any sustained buying power. The market is as professional at present as at any time during the Summer. Reports are persistent that insiders are steady sellers on every rally. But traders stand over short commitments. The technical situation is calculated to inspire a great deal of caution on the part of the astute. Some of the latter were never more in doubt as to whether it is better to buy or sell.

TONE STEADIER IN BOSTON

But Local Market Is Quiet and Narrow; Curb Heavy at Opening

There was a little better tone to the Boston list at the opening and, although the market was irregular, the majority of changes at the start were upward. There was but little movement in either direction during the forenoon. Most gains and losses were fractional and there was no breaks in trading. It was as narrow as it was dull. Elder began as a new lowest for the year but rallied and showed a small gain. Compers were firmer. It is reported that some large consumers will be in the market for metal supplies soon and producers are looking for a buoyant movement by the end of the month. New England rails were quiet and did not register to any strength shown by carriers in New York.

Steadies to sell fractionally higher during the morning included American Telephone, Calumet & Arizona, Ventures, Eastern Manufacturing, International Cement, Swift International, Seneca, New Cornelia and Gray & Davis.

Among issues to sustain small losses were the United and Cannon Hill, Libby and North Butte.

CURB PRICES LOWER.

The Curb market was somewhat heavy during the morning, a number of leaders opening lower. It was more active in early trading than for several days. Among stocks to recede at the start were Bagdad, Crystal, Manhattan, Little Rhoades, Pilgrim, Aphir and Texans. Early advances were recorded for Eureka, Hecla Divide and Seven Metals. The most active issues were Boston and Montana, Crystal and Mutual.

At the end of an hour Boston & Montana was up 1 cent, at 77 cents, and Crystal 2 cents, at 40 cents, while Mutual was off 2 cents at 82 cents. Manhattan 19 cents, at 51 cents; Denbigh 1 cent, at 13 cents, and Imperial 1 cent, at 12 cents.

BOSTON FINANCIAL NOTES.

The operating loss of $147,000 reported by Butte & Superior for the second quarter of this year, as compared with net profit of $627,258 for the first three months, is attributed to a shutdown of three weeks' duration because of a strike. The half-year's profits for the company amount to $480,258, or $1.62 a share.

It is stated at the New York office of the White Oil Corporation that its No. 16 tipped well in shallow sand of Hosmer Field has been completed to at least 2,000 feet, flowing 1,000 barrels daily. Its No. 32 thrilled in Goose Creek, South Texas field, has been brought in at 3,345 feet, flowing 2,000 barrels a day.

The Massachusetts Oil Refining Co.'s new plant at East Braintree is now in operation. It was built with a view to refining 1,000 barrels per day of 4,000 barrels a day. Eight acres of land have been purchased. Oil Refining Co. is controlled by Island Oil & Transport Corporation and its crude supply is assured by contract.

The Boston News Bureau says: "We understand from an authoritative source that Telephone & Telegraph Co. that some financing by subscription is probable. The matter has been discussed with the bankers for several weeks, but details have not yet been agreed upon. It is probable that the issue will be relatively small in amount. American Telephone & Telegraph Co. itself does not contemplate any new financing. The expected financing may possibly take the form of a group issue. Heil subsidiaries on a previous occasion financed in this way."

George L. De Hoda has been appointed treasurer of the Cannon Hill properties, succeeding the late C. E. Cotting.

COPPER TRADE LOOKS FOR MORE BUSINESS

Copper producers expect considerable business to develop within ten days and one of the largest sales of several sales at 19 cents a pound delivered. The buyers were wire or tube concerns and it is believed that consumers will have to come into the market soon. An American representative of a big British concern with this country brings from Europe the report that there is a big demand for this country there, especially in Germany.

While some small interests are quoting 18 5-8 cents a pound, it is said that little metal is available at that price.

Steel Prices

According to the Iron Age quotation the average price of eight principal iron and steel products remains unchanged at $84.41. When compared with the $73.81, the average shown by carriers in New York.

Steadies to sell fractionally higher during the morning included American Telephone, Calumet & Arizona, Ventures, Eastern Manufacturing, International Cement, Swift International, Seneca, New Cornelia and Gray & Davis.

Among issues to sustain small losses were the United and Cannon Hill, Libby and North Butte.

'OH! MR. PONZI' NEW SONG HIT

Composed by Daniel J. Sullivan, Writer of Many Popular Ballads

Now they are writing song hits about Ponzi.

Daniel J. Sullivan, a popular song composer, has just completed "Oh! Mr. Ponzi." And so Ponzi in song will be added to Ponzi in story.

Sullivan's reputation is national. His biggest ballad hit, "You're as Welcome as the Flowers in May," was sung the world over, and is still a favorite. John McCormack's "My Irish Song of Songs," was written by Sullivan. The last Boston Cadet opera, "Miss Decahontas," was a Sullivan composition. "Yogitland," an Oliver Ditson success written by Sullivan, is now being featured in Australian and London Hippodromes.

Sullivan's latest musical comedy, "Twinkle, Twinkle," will be produced in New York some time during the coming season, together with a new piece which has just been finished by the composer, "Twinkle, Twinkle" was put into rehearsal last winter, but was temporarily withdrawn.

"Lullaby Croon," written by Sullivan for Alma Gluck, will be included in the artist's repertoire this coming season. For seven years he wrote Irish songs for Chauncey Olcott, and has written numbers for Fiske O'Hare, Andrew Mack, May Irwin, Raymond Hitchcock, Richard Carle, Donald Brian and Nora Bayes. He is considering an offer from a New York producer.

Sterling Falls Two Cents

Sen. Robert L. Owen Charges Reserve Board With Deflating Credits

By BROADAN WALL

New York, August 24.—In spite of the poor statement of the local banks and the Federal Reserve Board for the whole country, stocks opened strong and active in Wall Street yesterday. They were sold freely from the beginning by pools and insiders so that before noon material losses were recorded. Trading fell off but in the afternoon a rally was engineered under leadership of Reading to cover up the sales of Baltimore & Ohio stock by a pool. The market closed in the midst of this rally.

Cotton fell off sharply again and Sterling was two cents lower, approaching its low point of a few days ago. News from Poland was negative.

Senator Robert L. Owen has come out in a strong denunciation of the Federal Reserve Board and has followed exactly the thought expressed frequently in this column. Senator Owen is from Oklahoma but he knows finance and banking well enough to teach many a Wall Street banker.

He says the Reserve Board is using the bank "rest for the purpose of stabilizing credits, but for the assounding purpose of deflating credits, breaking down confidence, and in bringing on an industrial depression that may be extremely harmful unless promptly checked."

The oils were all heavy after the early burst of trading.

The pool manipulation in Reading was too open to be mistaken. There was no especial reason for the advance of Reading except the fact that it is owned in large quantities by the Baltimore & Ohio.

Invincible Oil announced that it had at last brought in the new well in the Rising Star district of Texas. The well is up to the best expectations, yielding 2,000 barrels a day. The stock was quiet.

ROCKEFELLER CHARGE DENIED

Boarder, Aged 62, Disclaims Influencing Daughter of 'Oil King's' Cousin

New York, Aug. 24.—A summons asking for the arrest of John William Marsh, aged sixty-two, a graduate of Oxford University, was sworn out by Mrs. Elinore Rockefeller, widow of the late William Rockefeller, first cousin of John D. Rockefeller.

Marsh is charged with disorderly conduct. Mrs. Rockefeller said that Marsh has been a roomer at her home, where he came three years ago, following financial difficulties.

Mrs. Rockefeller charges that Marsh exercised undue influence over her daughter Viola, aged thirty-four, who is and has been for some time mentally deficient.

Marsh denies the charge. He alleges that pity for the woman's condition was the only basis for his taking her to theatres and the seaside.

To Investors in Railroad Securities

WE believe that the Transportation Act of 1920 and the recent action of the Interstate Commerce Commission in making effective the provisions of that Act have made revolutionary changes in the Investment position of railroad bonds and shares.

The rate increase authorized does not, however, equally benefit all roads. Some that previously were considered in the first rank as investments are now apparently to be superseded by others which heretofore were less promising.

We invite inquiry as to the relative earning power of the railroads under the new status through our Statistical Department.

"WHOPPER" IS LIVELY AND TUNEFUL

By FRED J. McISAAC.

"The Little Whopper," a musical comedy, book by Otto Harbach, lyrics by Rida Dudley and music by Rudolph Friml, began an engagement at the Majestic Theatre last night.

This piece had a well deserved success in New York last season. It is one of the merriest, livest and most tuneful affairs to visit us for quite a while, and it has the additional merit of coming here with the same clever cast which put the piece over in New York.

Oftentimes you drop in upon a celebrated musical production and find that it doesn't come up to expectations. If you investigate you discover that a lot of people no longer in the cast made its reputation for it. This is not true of the "Whopper." The cast is intact.

If you don't know what a "whopper" is, it is the fib of a lifetime. Early in the show the heroine tells a fib to get away from her school for an afternoon. The fib develops into a lie, and finally grows into a whopper.

There are a lot of farcical complications in the "Whopper," and the musical numbers come on fast and are so spirited that you don't have a dull moment.

Vivienne Segal is the heroine. This little girl sings much better and has developed gifts as a comedienne since she was last in Boston. She is a very peppery person nowadays. Helen Gunther, a dainty blonde, is also a snappy little actress with good vocal cords.

Harry B. Browne is a big local favorite and has an unusually good part. George Rasely, the tenor, recently with "Chu Chin Chow," made a fine impression.

That rare old antique, W. J. Ferguson, has a servant role which gives him every chance for clever work and he gets many a laugh.

Other Theatres

PARK THEATRE—The bill at the Park Theatre this week is headed by Ethel Clayton in "More Deadly Than the Male." Miss Clayton has the role of an actress-adventurer, who preys on old Fred Osmond, a retired adventurer, to settle down to some useful occupation.

JOSH'S OLYMPIA—How a simple little girl from a humble squatter's cabin was entrusted by fate with the holding in her power of the life and happiness of the wealthy "Hilltopper," who mistreated her, is pointedly brought in "Polly of the Storm Company," in which Mildred Harris Chaplin was seen last evening at Gordon's Olympia.

SCOLLAY SQUARE OLYMPIA—A raid on a gambling den, the arrest of its inmates and the killing of an officer presents one of the thrilling action features of "Fangs of Fate," which was shown last evening at Gordon's Scollay Square Olympia. The location is a small Southern town, but one that is run "wide open," it is full of thrills.

OLD SOUTH THEATRE—How a girl recruited the sturdy Kentucky night-riders is shown in "Heart of the Hills," adapted from the story by John Fox, Jr., in which Mary Pickford was shown last evening at the Old South Theatre. This attraction is Miss Pickford's latest picture and is calling for a great amount of very satisfy.

GAYETY THEATRE—Billy Watson and his Parisian Whirl show opened at the Gayety to a well filled house yesterday afternoon. The comedy is in the hands of the original Billy Watson, Billy Spencer and Edgar Bixley. Burke Walker has a wonderful tenor voice and Elsa Lovendau, in her specialty, shows a wonderfully strong soprano voice.

COLUMBIA THEATRE—Announcement is made that Lowe's Columbia Theatre, Washington and Eliot sts., will re-open on Thursday noon, August 26, offering a brand new policy for the coming season, instead of the daily changes of photoplays the management has arranged for the showing of high-class vaudeville and the best and latest photo productions, with six changes weekly, on Monday and Thursday.

MODERN AND BEACON—Why Georges Carpentier, idol of France and heavyweight champion of Europe, has been called "the gentleman of the ring," is explained in convincing fashion in "Broke in France," which Robertson-Cole distributes, at the Modern and Beacon Theatres yesterday.

SOMERVILLE THEATRE—Seats are being rapidly disposed of at the Somerville Theatre for the presentation of "Within Closed Doors," the popular Somerville Players at this theatre as the inaugural attraction for the coming season beginning next Monday matinee, August 30.

CODMAN SQUARE THEATRE—Jugging the capacity audiences that visited the popular Codman Square Theatre, Dorchester, one would suspect that the manager was in for very height. The reason, however, may be best ascribed to the fact that Manager Coyle has arranged a program of exceptional merit in both the vaudeville and photoplay shows.

CAMBRIDGE CENTRAL SQUARE—The difference between the crew man right at wooing and the one seeking it in which the man holds the woman as his ideal, is brought out in "The Interior Story," which Mildred Harris Chaplin. There was also a very fine vaudeville bill.

JUVENILE DANCERS AT CRESCENT GARDENS

The juvenile dancers, Alice Wood and Lulu Philbrick, opened a week's engagement at the Crescent Gardens Ball Room, Revere Beach, last evening before a large and appreciative throng of dance lovers. They exhibited unusual skill and their acts were done in attractive fashion. They will exhibit every evening this week. Performances Wednesday evening, the management has arranged a big musical treat and will stage a battle of music between the famous Beverly Jazz Orchestra of Boston, a team of Boston's best selected musicians and specialty artists, against the popular Crescent Gardens Singing Orchestra, Thielman leader. There will be continuous dancing till midnight.

Gov. Cox Should Try to Tell Women Voters Why League Fails to Stop Wars

Governor Cox, the Democratic nominee for President, has taken upon himself all the burdens of the present Administration with wonderful cheerfulness. One of those burdens is the League of Nations, which he endorses, even more thoroughly and unequivocally than the Democratic Convention.

Speaking in Wheeling, W. Va., the other night, he said that the League of Nations was the attempt of President Wilson to keep faith with American mothers, from whom he called their boys in 1917 and 1918, some never to return. We suppose that this "sob" stuff by Governor Cox means that the President is alleged to have promised the women of the country that when he took the young men he would use them in a way which would make future wars impossible.

We imagine that Governor Cox has looked over the field and has made up his mind that the women of the country can be influenced more by the League of Nations appeal to their emotional hatred of war than they can be influenced by any other consideration. Perhaps so.

But if he thinks that by mere reiteration, and in the face of notorious facts to the contrary, he can make women more readily than men believe that the League of Nations will prevent war, he is reckoning without his host. The women of this country want evidence as well as the men. They want to be shown like the men.

The women will want to be shown why the League of Nations will stop war; it has not stopped the thirty-nine wars already being waged. They will want to be shown why in most of those wars some member of the League of Nations is a guilty aggressor.

If the League of Nations means anything but an offensive and defensive alliance among certain victorious nations to divide the spoils, the women of America will want to know why it could not prevent Poland, one of the least of its members, from going to war against Russia without excuse. The women of America will want to know why the dominant members of the League of Nations incited Poland to go to war.

And Governor Cox will not dare to tell the women of America that these things would have been better if America had entered the league, for Governor Cox knows that things would have been worse. He knows that the President did all he could to aid and abet the war against Russia, and that his proposal to take the bare Armenian mandate and to send from 50,000 to 100,000 American troops to guard it—for that is what our military experts said it would take—was nothing but a scheme to aid France and England in their imperialistic conspiracy against the people of Asia Minor, in which England and France were proposing to take the fat of the land and all its benefits and to leave its burdens and its nakedness to us.

The women of America will want to be shown all these things. We sympathize with Governor Cox.

Providence Is Wise

Even Love of Money Proves It

Copyright, 1920, Star Company.

Does money enter into the soul and apparently become a part of it? Apparently it does.

Nathan Straus, who has studied human nature, says of a nation across the water, "When they lose a relative they feel very badly about it. When they lose money they go to bed, sick."

The other day a man in the silk business attempted suicide. As sufficient explanation it was said that he had lost a million and a half recently.

What difference does it make if you lose a million and a half, but retain your life, able to go ahead and start making another million, if that is what you want?

It makes so much difference that the man who has lost his money no longer WANTS his life.

However, never criticize Providence for creating men in this fashion. It is all part of the WISDOM of Providence.

A man will only work for that which he really loves. He will only work himself to death, as Americans do, for that which he loves MORE than life.

It is highly important that men should love money, even that they should love it more than life. For when a man thinks he is working for money, he really is working for the nation and for the race.

He is creating factories, is producing goods. He is feeding children, he is doing something USEFUL. He thinks he is only making money, whereas making money is the least part of it. His love of money makes him work desperately.

When, occasionally, he kills himself because he loses the money, you simply and reverently say, "Wise Providence, you get out of us ALL that there is in us. You know how to make us work, and you put us here to work. You give us money as a reward. And you make us like the reward so much that we are willing to die when we lose it."

VERY WISE PROVIDENCE.

"For Sale—My Baby"

An artist in Chicago, a widower, in debt and without work, advertised to sell his four-year-old auburn-haired, blue-eyed daughter to a good family for $1,000. He received 200 replies.

What are we to think of the incident?

The artist, we can assume, did not want to part with his daughter. He wanted work. He would gladly have toiled hard to maintain a home. Nobody offered him the means of doing that. Yet 200 families were eager to exchange $1,000 for a beautiful, well-bred child—a child not their own.

Few of these families would have sold a daughter for $1,000. Was their willingness to accept the despairing artist's offer, therefore, generous or mean?

This growing habit of selling children is not the most inspiring fact of our time. It needs to be discouraged. Where the excuse of poverty is genuine it indicts our civilization. Where it is bogus it calls for punishment.

A good rule for child-buying couples is to have children of their own.

Man's power to build a monopoly control around products of nature often goes very far. But there comes a time when it is futile.

Such a time seems to have come in the sugar market. For many sun's rays speeding sap through tall canes have produced a flood of crystal sweetness, and the monopolist in the picture is getting what he didn't reckon upon—a deluge.

Housewives needn't worry.

More Truth Than Poetry

The Man in the Ditch

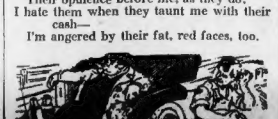
By S. E. KISER

TODAY, when I was working in the ditch,
Besmeared with mud and sweating like a Turk,
A man drove past, and Lord, but he looked rich!
He seemed, somehow, to make me hate my work.
He drove a car with solid, glistening wheels—
You know the kind—the million-dollar flash;
His big, red face bespoke expensive meals—
His new clothes fairly seemed to bulge with cash.

I STRAIGHTENED up and watched him drive away,
And I remembered things that I'd been through—
The hard work in the camp day after day,
The marching in the mud; the cooties, too.
The fighting and the hunger and the thirst,
The sickness that had made me want to die;
My throat got lumpy, and I guess I cursed—
I hardly think I need to tell you why.

I WONDER what he did while I was sent
To serve as cannon fodder—told I must!
Made ready, I suppose, to raise his rent,
Or overcharged for stuff that's red with rust;
Made bifalutin speeches, I've no doubt,
And cheered the flag and helped to spread the scare—
My anger grew while I was picking out
The mud that he had spattered in my hair.

PLEASE don't repeat the things I tell you here.
Sedition may be in them—I don't know.
My nerves are not quite steady yet, I fear.
In time I'll learn to be more patient, though.
I wish the profiteers would cease to flash
Their opulence before me, as they do;
I hate them when they taunt me with their cash—
I'm angered by their fat, red faces, too.



Letters to the Editor

Honor Real Worker

Editor Boston American:

"Statesmen Must Heed," is a short editorial which is all right from beginning to end. I, for one, sincerely hope the day is not far off when the real workers and builders of this world will be rewarded and idolized, better and higher, than those individuals who destroy human life and property, which they cannot create or replace.

"Labor," the creator of deadly instruments of war, also carrier and deliverer of such (to destroy its own flesh and blood, to enrich profiteers) is a mighty power in itself. "Labor," by laying down its tools and refusing to work, can put an end to unjust, imperialistic wars, camouflaged to deceive the unenlightened.

No Nation to Help

Editor Boston American:

I feel as all men with Irish blood in them do, when I read the papers of the way the English soldiers are murdering civilians in cold blood.

England would be doing the same thing in this country today if she could. She tried it, but failed, so now we are cousins, don't you know. And now she would have us in the League of Nations to help her murder every little nation on earth. Why is it so? Why is it that we know such things are going on, and there is no nation to help Ireland like France is helping the Poles?

The Invalid's Eden

A man from the Isle of Skye, on a visit to Glasgow, went into a drug store and expressed frank astonishment at the bewildering array of bottles he saw there. "These medicines are ferry numerous—yes, ferry numerous indeed!" "Yes, we have to keep a great many," the chemist said. "Now, in Skye, where I come from," the visitor went on, "the medicines are not what you might call numerous at all." "No," said the chemist. "How many do you have?" "Just two. There is tar for the sheep and whiskey for the people."

Days I Would Like to Live Over

By Dr. Frank Crane

THERE is no time of my life I would rather live over than my school days.

It may interest boys and girls to know how I, fifty years old and over, having had all sorts of experience, would feel about going to school, if I were young again.

I would surely go to school, because school is the best place in which to pass one's youth. No matter how great a chance to make money a boy may have, he will make more money in the long run if he has a good schooling. No matter how good an opportunity a girl may have to get married, she will make a better wife and mother, and be happier, if she has an education.

You are much more likely to meet the best kind of people with whom to form lifelong friendships in school than elsewhere.

Schools are not perfect, but they are the best institutions that exist for boys and girls. They are the finest product of civilization, the best result of evolution.

Time spent in school is not wasted. You lost nothing by taking pains to sharpen your ax.

In school you get in touch with the past. The human race has existed a long while. At school you get the benefit of its accumulated experience. You stand on your forefather's shoulders and do not have to try experiments they have tried over and over.

At school you learn to love and to use books, and from books have come the best efficiency and enjoyment of my life.

At school you learn what is best of all, how to form good tastes. The most marked difference between a cultured person and a vulgar one is the kind of things they like.

At school you rub off the sharp corners of your personality; you learn how to be agreeable, how to get along with folks, and how to play the game of life with the most enjoyment.

Of all the men and women I have known, not one of them was ever sorry for going to school, and every one who for any reason had missed an education regretted it.

To say that you would like to go to school if you were able is nonsense. Any boy can get an education if he desires it enough. Any girl can get schooling if she is sufficiently determined.

Of all the fools that roam the earth, the one that wears the blue ribbon as the biggest fool of all is the boy who will not go to school because he wants to go into business. His only competitor for first prize is the girl who leaves school to get married.

THE THING THAT REALLY MATTERS

The Census Bureau has given Detroit almost a million population, but it hasn't been able to do a thing for the Michigan town's baseball team.

THERE'S A LEAK SOMEWHERE

There may be an increase of general intelligence, but it doesn't seem to be in consonance with the number of encyclopedias that are sold on the installment plan.

CAN LIGHT BE GIVEN WITHOUT HEAT?

By Garrett P. Serviss

"In a recent debate of light and heat A says that all natural light gives heat of some temperature—I even 'fire-huge.' B says that reflection from a mirror gives light and no heat. Is a reflection from a mirror natural light? And is there anything giving light and no heat?—W. H."

THERE is no "unnatural" light. All light is of the same essential nature, differing simply in intensity, visibility, color, etc. Of course, light reflected from a mirror is natural—it could be nothing else. Its quality, or intensity, may be changed because of the glass having absorbed some of its waves and reflected only the remainder, but those that are reflected are just as "natural" as when they were mingled with the others.

From a Mrror

If the light reflected from a mirror produces less heating effect than before it was reflected the casue is to be found in this process of absorption of certain waves while others are reflected. Heat waves are mingled with light waves an dthe proportion of heat rays absorbed may be greater than that of the light waves absorbed. The heat waves are longer than the light waves, but they all together form a connected series of vibrations of the ether, and the general name for them is radiant energy.

The matter can hardly be put more clearly than Maxwell has put it:

When Hot

"All hot bodies emit radiation. When the body is hot enough its radiations become visible, and the body is said to be red-hot. When it is still hotter it sends forth not only red rays, but rays of every color, and it is then said to be white-hot. When a body is too cold to shine visibly it still shines with invisible heating rays, which can be perceived by a sufficiently delicate thermometer, and it does not appear that any body can be so cold as not to send forth radiations."

HOLD ON TO WHAT YOU HAVE

Sometimes when you think about your life and compare it with the lives of other men you think that you have nearly always been pulling upstream against a strong current.

Don't you sometimes think you are fighting a battle which is not going to bring you much success in the end because you cannot see, with your present earning capacity, how you are going to accumulate very much and keep living expense paid in full?

You have almost a mind to ease up in effort, not be so saving and stop denying yourself the little pleasures you forego because they are really beyond your income.

Then the thought comes that if you must wind up your life in a charitable institution, you might as well go ahead and spend your money, have a good time and get there a little earlier perhaps.

Dangerous line of thought—the thought of a weakling—stop it.

You are losing pride and ambition.

Don't be a disgrace to your parents, a disappointment to your friends, just because you have not the real manhood to continue a good fight.

Antiquity of the Greyhound

Probably the oldest family of dogs in the world is the greyhound. They figure on Egyptian frescoes of the early Pharaohs, were used for coursing by the Greeks, and a fine Antoine sculpture in the British Museum of two greyhounds fondling each other proves that they were appreciated by the Romans.

They were favorites with almost all the English kings, from Canute to Charles I., and King John repeatedly took greyhounds instead of money for payment of the penalties he inflicted. Until 1858 a special tax of twenty-two shillings each was levied on greyhounds to place them beyond the reach of democracy.

PLAIN FOLKS ARE BEST OF THE RACE

By The Spectator

JUST plain folks are more interesting than the people who occupy niches. I have met one or two kings, a number of hereditary nobles, and many presidents of things, but today I feel surer of real entertainment to drop into a seat on the street car beside a Jew peddler or a plumber's apprentice than to call on the Marchese de Kalibazam and sip tea and swap platitudes.

In the first place, it is plain, common folks who have characteristics. They are individual. In cultured, select society all are poured into the same mold.

Pure in Middle

Common people have customs. The aristocracy, as Chesterton says, have no customs; they have only habits, like animals.

The plain people have always been the home of the great moral dynamic of the race. Vice and crime are the product of the drugs and the scum of humanity. Society is whiskey and dirt at the bottom, champagne and divorce at the top.

In the middle is the pure water and healthy people.

In Best Class

Almost all the great men of history have been bourgeois. Few heroes come from the slums or castles. To call a man common, therefore, is to class him in the same social level as Richard Wagner, Napoleon Bonaparte, Raffael Santi, Socrates, Abraham Lincoln.

If the American people ever get sense enough to put some of the millions which they now waste into civic theatres, public galleries, the artistic adornment of State and national buildings, and the maintenance of orchestral and choral music, it will be infinitely better for the liberal arts than all the millionaire collectors of Christendom.

And finally, the common lot is the best, because there people have the most fun. Life is fuller, fresher, more sparkling.

Money won't buy a harp or a diamond-studded crown
